RAILROAD EMPLOYEES FOUND GUILTY OF GROSS CARELESSNESS.

They Are Discharged From the Employ of the Southern Pacific Because of a Wreck.

Gross recklessness and disregard of the rules of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company by the freight crew were the findings reached by Division Superintendent Palmer of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, today. In his inquiry as to the cause of the collision, last Thursday night between a loaded freight car and the Alameda local train at First and Peralta streets and as a consequence, Switch Engineer T. H. Whistler, and Yard Foreman M. K. Mock were immediately dismissed from the service of the Southern Pacific Company.

The verdict was returned against the crew which at the time of the collision were attached to the switch engine and which included engine fireman, F. Williams, and yard switchmen, George M. Stack and Joseph Lazelle.

No action was taken with respect to the last three because they were acting in a subordinate capacity, the two employees discharged being in control of the train.

NOT EXONERATED.

They are not exonerated, however, because officials declare that even Lazelle, who was severely injured in the collision, had no right to be where he was at the time he was injured and that he should have made an attempt to turn on the air.

The actions of these men will, in some measure, affect their record as employees of the company.

WITNESSES.

The conclusion arrived at was reached after Superintendent Palmer had listened to the testimony of both crews, as follows:

Alameda local—Albert Wright, engineer; C. G. Levitt, fireman; Harry Edwards, conductor; H. C. Cameron, brakeman.

Freight train—T. H. Whistler, engineer; switch engine 1108; F. Williams, fire-

PARIS, November 7.—Before giving a formal recognition by France of the Republic of Panama, Foreign Minister Delcasse has decided to secure a specific declaration that the regime will carry out Colombia's former declarations with regard to the canal and other French property.

Unless this declaration is unmistakably given, French recognition will be withheld, but as soon as it is given there is the best reason to believe that France will recognize the independence of the new State.

Cable inquiries are now proceeding to secure the specific assurance required. The French consul at Panama, cabled yesterday that Panama would assume Colombia's former treaty and legal obligations.

This is considered by the officials here as making practically certain the intentions of the new State towards French property rights but in order to remove the slightest question of doubt, a definite declaration from the new regime is awaited.

When it is received it is expected that the French course toward the recognition of the new State will be substantially that taken by Washington yesterday, the French consul at Panama being directed to enter into relations with the new authorities and formal letters of recognition following later.

The officials here construe the action taken by the United States as being equivalent to a full recognition of the States.

JUDGE TOLD HIM HE OUGHT TO BE PUNCHED.

"You should have your head punched for writing such a letter to that lady. I do not believe that you are crazy, but I hope that if you molest this lady any more that the City Attorney will proceed against you under Section 700 of the Penal Code. You are evidently a man of very bad temper."

These were the words of Judge Melvin this morning at the termination of the examination of Andrew P. Johnson, on a charge of insanity sworn to by the woman who was once his wife.

Johnson, according to Mrs. White, his one-time mother-in-law, is an Englishman who does not believe that divorce laws are good. Once married always married are the views he holds and because his wife, whose he holds in high esteem, is a native American, he thought the formality of getting a separation from him in no way detracts from his honor.

Johnson said that he was a civil engineer. He wrote a particularly vicious letter to Mrs. White about her daughter and it was this particular letter that called forth the remark of Judge Melvin. There were several letters introduced. One was written to Mrs. Walter Bird, in which the writer warned her that her husband was in the habit of meeting his wife and he wished the attentions to cease.

In one of the letters written by him he signed himself "Sir Edward" and the judge wished to know if he ever imagined that he was anyone else. Johnson, however, explained that this was a joke known to a few of his friends. He denied that he drank to excess, while Mrs. Johnson said that she was unable to recall the number of times he had been drunk. Once she said he chased her down the street with nothing on but a pair of trousers. He was then verging on delirium tremens, she said.

Walter Bird, his wife, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. White all testified to his following them all at different times until they had become frightened that he would do them some harm. He had threatened to blow the roof off Mrs. White's house and to shoot Bird if he saw him with his wife again. Once Mrs. Johnson had him arrested and he was fined $20 in the Police Court, but it in no way stopped his annoying her. He followed Bird home a few nights ago. Bird had the policeman on the beat arrest him. The next morning Bird appeared at the Police Court, but before proceeding against him Prosecuting Attorney Abe Leach wished him to be examined for his sanity. It was the result of this action that Mrs. Johnson made the charge.

At the conclusion of the examination Johnson was allowed to go. Both judge and doctors were of the opinion that he was not insane and that the matter was one for the police magistrate. Judge Melvin suggested to Mrs. Johnson that if he annoyed her any more that she could have him placed under bonds, and she stated that she would do this today. She said that she was a long distance from home and that she was afraid to go out on the street.

BULLET HOLE IN HEART.

NEVADA, Cal., Nov. 7.—The dead body of A. P. Harris was found eight miles from Sierra City, near the Salinas and Mercer mine yesterday morning by his son-in-law, W. D. McDonald. A bullet hole through his heart showed the cause of death, but the identity of the murderer has not been ascertained.

Harris was about 72 years of age. He had lived on his farm, Harris Meadows, about eight miles from Sierra City, for a number of years. He kept some cattle on his pasture and devoted some of his time to prospecting the vicinity. It is said that he was of a quarrelsome nature. He lived alone in his cabin, which on Thursday morning he left with a horse, saying that he intended to put it in the pasture and was not again seen alive.

UNITED STATES WILL REPRESENT POWERS ACROSS THE WATER.

People of the New Republic Are Wild With Joy Over Pro- tection of Uncle Sam.

WASHINGTON, November 7.—Today's advice to the State Department indicate a regular development of the new government of Panama.

The most important announcement indicative of a speedy establishment of full diplomatic relations with the new republic was the appointment of Buncieu-Varilla as the agent of Panama in the United States. With him the United States government will transact any necessary business in an unofficial way, pending the appointment of regular ministers plenipotentiary.

Mr. Gudgeon, the United States consul-general to Panama, who sails tomorrow for that port, called at the State Department today for a further conference with Secretary Hay, at whose instance he later conferred with the President over the situation.

The British government has formally requested the State Department to look after the British subjects on the Isthmus and similar requests from other European nations are expected all of which will be promptly granted. There are reasons why it is desirable that a large foreign naval representation in Isthmian waters should be discouraged just now, and until the new government is permanently established.

It is expected here that there will be little delay about such establishment and as soon as there is a regular government at Panama in place of the present Junta, the State Department expects to take up negotiations for the construction of the canal project.

NATIONAL GUARD ORDERED TO BE READY.

Adjutant General of Colorado Antici- pates Trouble at Reopening of Mines at Telluride.

DENVER, Colo., November 7.—Orders have been issued by Adjutant-General Bell to every organization of the Colorado National Guard now in Cripple Creek to be in readiness to take the field. It had been planned to reopen the mines at Telluride, next Monday under military protection but in view of the impending strike of coal miners the Telluride mine managers decided to defer action. It is presumed the troops are to be held in readiness to proceed to coal camps where miners will go on strike next Monday, under orders from the national executive officers of the United Mine Workers of America. Adjutant-General Bell has announced his intention of recruiting the national guard up to 3000 men.

News from Trinidad is to the effect that the exodus of miners to other coal fields has set in. A number have purchased tickets to points in Texas, Indian Territory, Missouri and Illinois. Many Italians and Austrians are arranging to leave for Europe.

The operators have issued instructions to the miners to bring their tools out of the workings at quitting time tonight.

Those who do not go back to work on Monday will be treated as strikers. The strike will be on to all intents and purposes at sundown tonight. It is stated on authority that the mine workers' association has large sums of money deposited in the banks here for strike purposes and that the amount is being increased daily.

All unions in the northern fields will hold meetings and by referendum vote will adopt or reject the schedule submitted by the operators at the conference just closed. The schedule is a concession on the part of the operators and equivalent to a raise of from one to ten per cent over the present scale. The eight-hour question was well

CROSSED IN KITE BOAT.

S. F. CODY'S KITE-DRAWN BOAT THAT MADE THE TRIP TODAY.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—After several failures, S. F. Cody today succeeded in crossing the channel in his kite boat. He left Calais at 11 o'clock last night and reached Dover 13 hours later. He encountered a strong wind and had some narrow escapes.

Cody had previously made two unsuccessful attempts to cross the channel from Dover to Calais in a collapsible boat drawn by a kite on October 10 and November 4, respectively. The kite he employed was somewhat on the principle of a box-kite and was capable of lifting several tons. The boat weighed four tons and was decked with canvas. It resembled a miniature submarine boat. A combined steering gear manipulated the kite and the boat's rudder alike and enabled Cody to maneuver with comparative ease.

Whatever may be your disease, whether young or old, men, women or children, come to the State Medical Institute and receive one week's treatment free. MISS MARY JAMISON.
A Native Daughter and One of Placer County's Most Successful School Teachers.

Miss Mary Jamison, a school teacher of Placer County, Cal., has this to say: "For a number of years my health has been failing, and had become very bad. In addition to this, I was afflicted with a severe attack of La Grippe, which culminated in diphtheria, with erysipelas. The glands of my throat and about the neck were all inflamed. My body became involved. I went on from bad to worse. Blood poison set in and I was in a death's door. None but the hands of the great healer could have saved me. I was attended by some doctors in this section of the country. They failed to relieve me. In this condition I was taken to the State Medical Institute at 1160 1/2 Broadway, Oakland, Cal., and by his skill and gentle treatment I was restored to health. During this time Dr. Neagle has treated my mother, who is now quite well, and with his experience, we consider it not only a duty, but also a pleasure to recommend him to all who are sick to go to Oakland and to the State Medical Institute, and we believe that they will be promptly cured. I live with my mother, Mrs. Stephen I. Jamison, at Oakridge, Placer County, California, and will be pleased to answer all letters or talk with you about my experience with regard to the successful treatment that Dr. Neagle has given us during his attendance upon our family."

Oakridge, Placer County, Cal.
J. T. Dille, one of the contractors and builders of Oakland, who lives at 118 Fourteenth street, has this to say: "I have a very severe attack of La Grippe, and since then I have been a great sufferer from catarrh and indigestion. It greatly impaired my health and I was unable to do any work or business. The catarrh affected my hearing so that I could not understand a word of conversation. I consulted several doctors and had tried a great many patent medicines, but with little or no relief. I noticed in the papers a notice of a cure of people who were treated and cured at the State Medical Institute at 1160 1/2 Broadway, in this city. I went there and put myself under the care of these doctors. I began improving from the first day I took their treatment and now after two months I consider myself a well man, and consider it a pleasure and a duty to give this statement that all who are suffering from any disease may go there and be cured. I have known a great many people and will be glad at any time to talk with any one about the successful treatment and cure of my case."

J. T. Dille.
318 Fourteenth street, Oakland, Cal.
Mrs. M. E. Riley, one of the successful and thrifty women of Oakland, has this to say: "By very close watching and nursing in a family who were afflicted with diphtheria, the winter and spring months, I became very much run down and my health very poor, but I did not give up my profession and continued to nurse the sick until last September, while dressing the wound of a patient and having a cut on my hand, I took on a very bad case of blood poison, which extended to the head and my body and soon ran a very rapid course through my whole system, making me a dangerously sick person. After using and trying all the remedies used by doctors before, and failing to get relief, I found that my life was in great danger and I sent for Dr. Neagle, who is located at the State Medical Institute at 1160 1/2 Broadway, Oakland, Cal. I took charge of my case and gave me close attention and prompt medical treatment. I was cured and now at this time I feel as well as I have felt at any time in my life. As blood poison is such a dangerous disease and I have known a great many cases that have proved fatal, I feel that the treatment given to me by Dr. Neagle was a very successful one. And it is with pleasure and a duty that I publish this statement that he may cure all who are afflicted with any disease and to the State Medical Institute and be cured. My home and address is 463 Taylor avenue, Alameda, Cal. I will be pleased to see any one who is afflicted with any disease and will with regard to my sickness and treatment."

MRS. M. E. RILEY.
It will be of great interest to the time to publish written testimonials of patients whom we have treated and cured throughout the country, but no such testimonials will ever be published without the written consent of the patient, for it is only through the kindness and grateful patients that we get permission to publish the same.

The doctors of the State Medical Institute treat and cure all diseases of the eye, ear, throat, and lungs; heart, kidneys, bladder, brain, catarrh, asthma, rheumatism, bronchitis, headache, neuralgia, diabetes, dyspepsia, dropsy, hemorrhoids, and rectal troubles, and all forms of sores, blood and wasting diseases.

All private and wasting diseases promptly cured and their effects permanently eradicated from the system. Diseases of women and children given special attention.

Nervous diseases and nervous prostration made a specialty.

TREE PLANTING DISCUSSED.

WOMEN'S IMPROVEMENT CLUB CONSIDERS WAYS AND MEANS.

The tree-planting committee of the Women's Civic Improvement Club held the most interesting meeting of the series yesterday afternoon in the Mayor's office. Mrs. Cora Jones is chairman of this committee which is busily gathering valuable information for scientific, as well as aesthetic tree-planting in the city of Oakland.

Many interesting theories were advanced and facts discussed as a result of the observation of the various members of the committee during the past week. A number of the members were in favor of the California maple tree for Broadway. It is a handsome tree, pretty in the fall when the leaves are turning; it is deciduous and the roots do not interfere with imperfect sewerage as so many trees are prone to do. Certain varieties of roses lead the way by a kind of instinct which leads the roots to the slightest crack or crevice in a sewer pipe. The women are agreed that they must approve of every tree that is planted and secure an exchange for weak or miserable specimens. Success will be insured in no other way.

Mayor Olney desires this committee to continue its observations and research, make a scientific selection of the kind of tree most suitable for the various streets and then submit the matter to the Council. Deciduous trees are favored for many reasons, principally because they are most suited to our climatic conditions here. The fall and winter winds must reach the sidewalks or we may have dump sidewalks during part of the year. The requirements for a tree are these: It must be tall enough for beauty yet not tall enough to obscure the buildings, hardy as to be a tree growing on the sidewalk and probably deciduous. The American elm and California maple meet these requirements better than any others that have been mentioned. Specimens of the American elm may be seen at Twelfth and Brush streets and at Tenth and Madison, and the maple at Tenth and Myrtle streets. The beautiful row of sycamores, fifteen years old at Seventh avenue and East Eleventh street, is mentioned as a specimen for tree-planters, and also the lindens planted seven years ago, which are not yet handsome, were mentioned to prove that this work of tree-planting is going to require years for an ideal result. Such a month, not accomplished in a day or a month, that may be considered later for streets running east and west. Carolina poplars form a pretty vista as everyone knows who sees Durand avenue at Berkeley. From the Telegraph avenue car the effect is very pleasing.

Dr. Willis L. Jepson who will speak at the meeting next Tuesday evening in the Board of Trade rooms holds four rules for tree-planting in the city. He says: 1. They should be planted at a distance of fifty feet apart, a greater distance if necessary. 2. A single row should be planted on both sides of the street. 3. Wherever practicable, only one kind on a street. 4. They should be deciduous.

These rules do not hold good for the cities of Southern California, where they have such wide streets and climatic conditions are different.

Mayor Olney approved the mention of the American elm on Telegraph avenue.

"They are slender and graceful," he said, "and a row of them on either side of Telegraph avenue stretching out to Berkeley would be a great addition to our city. They do not keep the sun off, they are beautiful in winter and they do not grow in a clump without character as many trees do. I think the vote of the people of Oakland would be unanimous against the cork elm. All trees are beautiful, yet it is a curious thing that we have less so than the cities of the north. In Oregon, for example, you care for an urban tree and he strongly favors sycamores on account of their rapid growth and the beautiful avenue effect possible with them."

Mayor Olney thinks it advisable, for the present, to consider tree-planting only on the streets running north and south. He emphasized the fact that the deciduous trees on account of the cold breezes, he thinks Oakland or San Francisco with their moist climate no place for an evergreen tree.

"This question," said he, "needs intelligent discussion. It cannot be done hastily. It should be done gradually. I thought a report should not be submitted to the Council for two or three weeks longer."

Mrs. J. G. Lemon delivered an interesting talk to the club. The ground has to be looked over carefully and the sections considered from all sides," she said. "The stores office because they hold that trees in front of their places of business will obstruct a view of the windows. Others would like to see trees come up right away. It takes time long and so the first thing to be done is to consider the conditions of the street which you select for tree-planting. Study the general character of Broadway. You see it is partly a residential street and partly a business district. She strongly recommended the native field oak for parks and public squares.

A communication was read from the committee on clean streets as follows: A. H. Breda has purchased the tract known as the old McElhath place extending from Shattuck avenue to Adeline street and from Fifty-second to Fifty-fifth streets. He is one of the first business men to take the promise to make that property a model, the streets and sidewalks to be kept in perfect condition at his own expense if necessary. Also the meetings of the clean streets committee will be held the first and third Thursdays of each month in future.

The meeting then adjourned to meet next Friday at half past three in the Mayor's office.

UNION MEMBERS SMOKE.

GAS WORKERS SPEND A SOCIAL EVENING WITH GUESTS.

Last night the members of the Gas Workers' Union enjoyed themselves at a smoker after the regular monthly business session. Seven candidates were taken into the union and several applications filed with the secretary.

By special invitation, a number of the officers of the Federated Trades' Council and other friends of the organization were present. There were speeches by the prominent members of the organization and congratulatory addresses by the guests. An impromptu program of musical numbers was rendered and the rest of the evening devoted to story telling, eating, drinking and smoking.

The committee of arrangements consisted of William Finn, Henry Merithew and W. Blakley.

The union is arranging a new schedule which will be adopted in December and presented to the employers to go into effect next year.

WAGON MAKERS.
The wagon makers will meet Monday evening and initiate a new member into the union.

MEETINGS TONIGHT.
The Tailors and Bakers will meet this evening in Building Trades headquarters, Eleventh and Broadway. The laborers will meet in Cooks and Waiters' headquarters, Broadway and Eighth street.

CARPENTERS.
The Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners now boasts of having a larger membership roll than any other labor organization in the United States save only the mine workers. The total number of members is now 164,000, whereas in 1881 the total membership was 2,042. The association has paid out $1,499,347 in disabilities and strikes during the last twenty-two years.

MILK WAGON DRIVERS.
The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Milk Wagon Drivers' Union will be held tomorrow at Becker's hall, 918 Washington street.

STATE FEDERATION OF LABOR.
There will be a special meeting of the executive board of the State Federation of Labor Sunday. It will be the last meeting previous to the State convention of the organization.

The Cracker Bakers' Union of San Francisco, made inquiries preparatory to joining.

CLERKS.
The Retail Clerks will meet in special session Monday evening in Fraternal hall, Washington street, to decide on a plan for the present meeting-place is too small. When the union gets into a larger hall, more attention will be paid to the social side of the organization's affairs.

SIGN PAINTERS.
The application of the Carriage and Sign Painters' Union was balloted on favorably at last night's meeting. The matter has been referred to the executive council.

CLUB BAKE TOMORROW.
Supervisor Joseph Kelly, Hon. Phil Walsh, J. B. Bowen, Joseph Rebo, H. Mosher, W. E. Scully, John H. C. Petty, and C. W. prominent labor leaders, will go in a bus to Bay Park tomorrow and enjoy a clam bake.

A bake will be taken along and there will be numerous games and contests to enliven the occasion.

MATERIAL TEAMSTERS' BALL.
The social committee of the Material Teamsters' Union is making elaborate preparations for a dance to be given in Armory Hall on December 12. The material teamsters have a new and new list of names which will be presented to the district council for endorsement at its meeting next Wednesday evening.

PLUMBERS.
Eugene Hilling, a prominent member of the Plumbers' Union will be tendered a farewell reception by his fellow workmen on the evening of November 10. Mr. Hilling retires from the union to go into business for himself. The committee in charge of the affair consists of Robert Francis, Otto Curdie, John Barry and Joseph Francis.

BAKERS TONIGHT.
This evening in Kohler & Chase Hall the members of the Bakers' Union will hold a celebration in honor of their capturing the Jones trophy cup offered to the union by the best baker in the city. The judges of the parade and prominent Alameda county labor leaders have been invited to attend.

NEWSBOYS.
The executive committee of the Newsboys' Union met last evening at 461 Ninth street and transacted routine business. It was determined that common law on the streets will be supplied with badges, so non-union newspaper vendors can be spotted more easily. They do not like the idea of grown men coming over from San Francisco and selling the city's newspapers with competition with local union newsboys.

Those present at the meeting were: M. L. O'Brien, Henry J. Greenough, Otto H. Kipke and Fred J. Perkins.

PAINTERS.
The painters are making great preparations for their annual dance, to be held in Armory Hall, Tenth street, between Franklin and Broadway, next month.

COOKS AND WAITERS.
At the next meeting of the Cooks' and Waiters' Union, to be held on November 10, the committee in charge of the recent dance at Reed Hall will make its report.

EVERY MAN ON EQUAL BASIS.
The membership in a co-operative concern is the principal. Every member having equal standing and influence, and all being equally interested, they are entitled to know all about it, hence nothing hidden—no secrets. The Oakland Roadhouse Co-operative grocery store, which is now open, is a model of the kind of business that should be kept in perfect condition at his own expense if necessary. Also the meetings of the clean streets committee will be held the first and third Thursdays of each month in future.

The meeting then adjourned to meet next Friday at half past three in the Mayor's office.

A DISCRIMINATING COW.
The young woman who was boarding at the farmhouse expressed to the farmer, says the Chicago News, her anxiety at the savage way in which the cow regarded her.

"It must be on account of the red waist you've got on, miss," answered the farmer.

"Dear me!" exclaimed the girl. "Of course it's out of fashion, but I had no other country cow would notice it."

SECOND WARDERS HOLD MEETING AND DISCUSS MATTE 18.

The meeting of the Second Ward Improvement Club held last night in Milton Hall, corner Twenty-eighth street and San Pablo avenue, for the purpose of discussing the operation of the garbage crematory on Twenty-sixth and Magnolia streets, was well represented by citizens of the Second Ward, both men and women.

President Johnson called the meeting to order, and introduced Colonel John P. Irish as speaker of the evening.

The Drinking Man's Legacy

When the Drinking Man dies, Shame is his Chief Mourner and the Whiskey Bottle his Legacy. His widow and Orphans are left to reap the Harvest of his Wretched Life, Unprotected and Destitute.

Let the Drinking Man picture his Widow drudging meekly to Support the Children his Thrift has Robbed of Bread—Let him picture the Pinched Faces of his fatherless Little Ones and say: "Is this to be the Fate of those I Love when I am Gone?" The Victim of the Liquor Habit is not the Degraded Creature he is made out to be. Many men of the Highest Intellectual and moral Character, Devoted Fathers and Husbands are Inebriates. The Curse of Drink is the Curse of Disease, self-inflicted, 'tis true, but Partial to None. It Fastens itself to Good and Bad, Rich and Poor, Old and Young alike, whether it is indulged in the Saloon or Hospital, the Home or Harvest-field, it always results in the Disease of Alcoholism, and unless Cured, the Victim will Torture Existence for years with an Inebriate's Misery of Life, and then fill a Drunkard's Grave.

THE MCKANNA CURE

for Alcoholism is a rational internal remedy which destroys all taste, desire or craving for drink. It restores the patient to perfect health physically and mentally, and is absolutely free from any dangerous after-effects. It has released 12,000 DRINKING MEN from the thralldom of liquor in 14 years.

It is perpetual to the end.

ARTISTS AND CRAFTSMEN TO GIVE BANQUET.

Making Preparations for an Exhibition and Sale of their Production.

Monday night will be a gala night for the artists of San Francisco, and those of the entire State as well. The hope which artists in San Francisco have cherished for years is about to be realized. For many years they have endeavored to have in San Francisco a place devoted exclusively to the exhibition and sale of their productions, but lack of necessary funds has prevented the consummation of their dearest wish.

The matter was brought to the attention of Dr. O. N. Orlov, M. D., the noted philanthropist, who founded the Society of Human Endeavor throughout the United States. The doctor is a lover of art and is the personal possessor of the most valuable collection of oriental and ancient art on the Pacific Coast. He took up the project at once and on Tuesday the new work will be inaugurated.

The title of the new institution will be, "The United Crafts and Arts." Dr. Orlov when asked to state the object of the institution said: "There will be an exhibition, and for sale, art of all schools, the productions exclusively of California artists. There have been times when artists could only exhibit their work. No one ever took sufficient interest in them to help them sell their wares. The consequence is that many a struggling but talented artist and craftsman has been obliged to give up all cherished hopes simply because he had to live. For this reason many beautiful creations of the mind have been lost. It is the purpose of this institution to give all a chance and if it is encouraged in San Francisco, similar institutions will be established in every city on the coast. The exhibits will at all times be free to the public and the institution will be maintained in such a manner that the artists and craftsmen not only of San Francisco but of the State at large will be benefited by it.

"We have established here an electrical plant with machinery for sawing, carving and cutting artists' furniture from the designs of the artists or to carry out any other artistic plans that may be brought to us. Only one piece of furniture will be made from any design so that the purchaser may feel assured that he will be the sole possessor of an article of the design that he may select. All metals and wood used in this department will be from the mines and forests of California exclusive of all others.

"This work will be conducted under the supervision of Professor F. H. Meyer, teacher of designing in Mark Hopkins art school.

A jury will pass upon all designs and works of art and only those of merit will be accepted.

"Separate rooms have been set apart which will be devoted to the separate classes of exhibits. The largest hall on the main floor will be used for all paintings. Here 300 electric lights have been arranged in such a manner that each picture will receive its proper light, no matter where it may be hung, and no matter how large.

"The next largest room in the building has been set apart for the production of water colors. Rooms have also been set apart for etchings, sketches and statuary works. In addition to these rooms, there will be rooms for the display of the designs of craftsmen, including designs for metal, of leather book binding, wall paper, carpets, tapestries, table linens, etc. Also designs of artists' homes with their interior decorations.

"In order to encourage the craftsmen, three cash prizes will be given to the three best designs offered during each month. These prizes will be of twenty-five, fifteen and ten dollars each. The designs will be passed upon by a jury of artists and the prizes awarded according to artistic merit. A record of these awards will be kept in a book of honor, the leaves of which will be in gold. A valuable prize will be offered for the best design for the cover of this book, the title of which will be 'The Book of Merit and Honor.'

"A large library and reading room with books and literature pertaining to the arts and crafts will be a feature. Here will be all the magazines of all languages pertaining to these subjects.

"A sketching room, looking out across the Presidio, the Golden Gate and the Bay of San Francisco, has also been made another feature.

"Chinese, Japanese, Indian, Persian and Turkish rooms, representing the art of silk are worth thousands of dollars, while two prayer rugs are practically invaluable. They have been obtained by the doctor himself from the Buddha temple in Mecca.

Many of these rarities are the only ones of their kind in the United States. It takes a lover of art to have an understanding of the labors which the doctor has devoted in behalf of the craftsmen and artists.

In addition to being open daily, the building will be open Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

Mrs. Alice M. Hickok will be the secretary in charge.

The invitations to the artists' reception on Monday night reads as follows:

"A reception to the artists and their friends will be given at the United Crafts and Arts Building by Dr. O. N. Orlov on the evening of November 9, 1903. You are cordially invited to be present. This will be a costume evening, social and informal in its nature. (No masks.) You will add greatly to the picturesque of the evening by wearing fancy dress.

"Committee of arrangement:

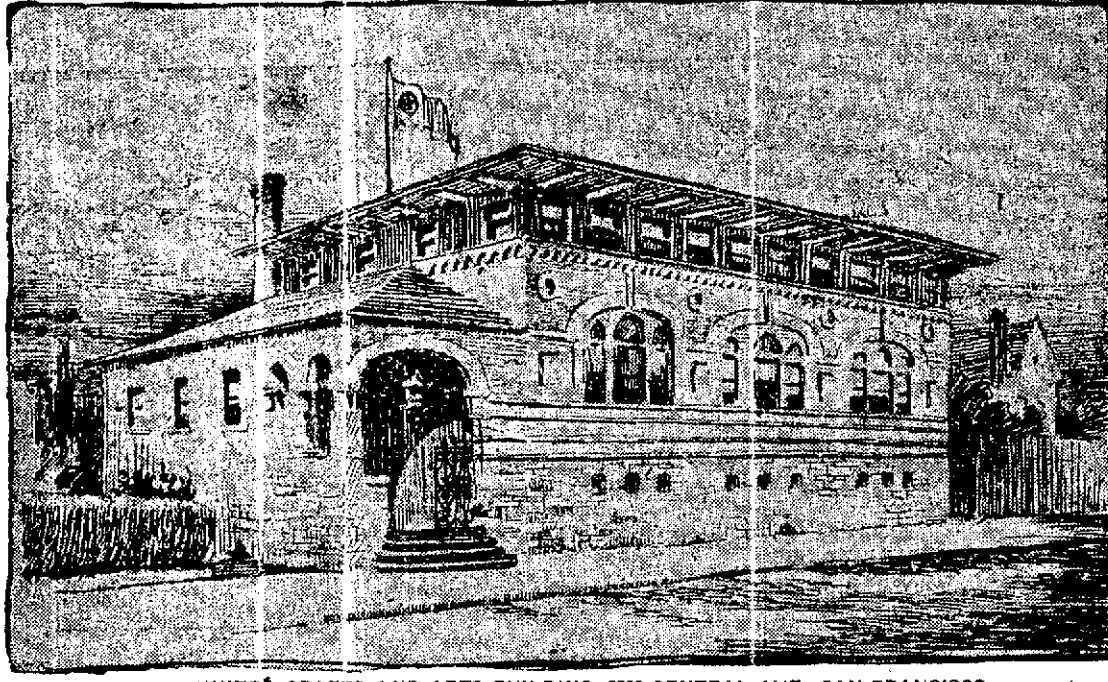

"C. P. NEILSON,
"F. H. MEYER,
"K. MARTINEZ.

"United Crafts and Arts, 2203 Central Avenue, San Francisco."

On Tuesday afternoon and evening the formal opening will be held, to which an invitation has been extended to the general public.

After Dr. Orlov had finished the above narrative he invited the first artist representative to inspect the building.

Japanese and Chinese furniture and cabinets inlaid with mother-of-pearl, and Jadae with religious significations lend their attractive and valuable effects. Here, too, are bells which sound their alarms by means of the action of the wind. Cloisonné and Setauma wares, rich in their effect, are visible everywhere. Among the precious relics are two brass candleholders used by Buddha, The Silent. Two resplendent gold carved temple doors, centuries old, from a temple of India, with an odd lantern which was used in the same temple, rare Japanese and Chinese hangings in prints and silk, sacred testaments with Jadae ornaments worn by Lama, and statuary of rare workmanship were in evidence. GENERAL MANAGER MAY ACCEPT OR REJECT ALAMEDA FRANCHISES.

ALAMEDA, November 7.—City Clerk Gillogly is in receipt of the following letter from N. P. Herrin, of the Southern Pacific Law Department:

"San Francisco, Nov. 6, 1903.

"Mr. J. W. Gillogly, City Clerk, Alameda: Dear Sir: I have your letter of November 4, 1903; a copy of the franchise ordinances is referred to by you. I have referred them to Mr. Kruttschnitt, who in due time will make reply to same. Yours truly,

"WILLIAM P. HERRIN."

As matters now stand it clearly rests with Mr. Kruttschnitt as to whether the franchise ordinances providing grants of twenty-five years each on the South Pacific Coast Line and the Central Pacific Branch shall be accepted or rejected. While the Southern Pacific lawyers stood firm last Monday evening for a forty-five-year term on the Central Pacific line and a thirty-three-year term on the South Pacific branch, there is little doubt but that the grants will be accepted in their present form.

It is expected that Mr. Kruttschnitt's answer will be before the City Trustees when they meet in adjourned session Monday night.

REV. E. E. BAKER LOW SENIORS AT SPOKE.

OAKLAND PASTOR ADDRESSED ADELPHIANS AT ALAMEDA.

ALAMEDA, November 7.—Rev. Ernest B. Baker of Oakland addressed the members of the Adelpian Club this afternoon, taking as his subject "A Pilgrimage to Literary Shrines." An interesting musical program was presented after the pastor's remarks.

Dr. Baker introduced his subject by telling his auditors that his address was to be the result of personal observations made while in Europe several years ago. Literary personages, both past and present, and literary points of interest were to be discussed.

Dr. Baker took his audience on a literary tour of Europe, beginning with Abbotsford, the birth-place of Sir Walter Scott. The great writer's library and studio were described, his youthful surroundings and burial place. A high personal estimate of his works was given.

Shakespeare's name was next mentioned. Dr. Baker then described the immortal Briton: "He was the greatest poet of his or any other age, because of his truth to human nature."

Westminster Abbey, the last resting place of so many famous men, was spoken of at length. Dr. Baker told of the bust of Longfellow and the memorial window to Lowell, the only marks of honor in the great building to Americans.

In rapid succession Carlyle, Goldsmith, Keats and Browning were spoken of. The great French and German writers, including Hugo, Voltaire, Rousseau, Calvin and Luther, were spoken of and their works dwelt on at length.

A review of early Roman literature was given and the works of Cicero and Caesar reviewed. Dr. Baker was warmly applauded at the conclusion of his address.

OILED ROAD DEFIES RAIN.

ALAMEDA, November 7.—The wisdom of oiling macadamized streets was plainly shown by today's showers. The north side of San Leandro avenue, between Park and Oak streets, which was recently oiled, showed very little effects of the down-pour, while the south side, which has never been oiled, presented the usual muddy and unpleasant appearance of the macadamized, during a rain shower.

FREE TOGS FOR THE BOOSTER.

The wine booster and the cigarette tout are well known personages, but the fellow who gets his clothes for nothing by taking up his tailor is a new one. Yet it is said that nearly all the fashionable tailors now carry such adjuncts to their business. In Philadelphia society there are lots of impetuous young men of good family and high social standing, who do not adverse to accepting their clothes gratis, as a return for which they lose no opportunity to boom the tailor who thus supplies them. Of course these tailors are around town with reputations as good as any with respect to quality, else the transaction would be a dead loss to the tailor. But there are sufficient quantities of them with more blue blood than ready money to make the practice worth while to the honest tailor.—Philadelphia Record.

Unique Fowl That Has Four Legs and a Starboard Tail.

M. Goodman of 14 Minor street is showing his friends a four-legged hen that he purchased in Pittsfield, Maine, on August 15. So far as is known this is the only bird of its kind in the world.

You will notice," said Mr. Goodman yesterday, "that the tail grows on the right side of the bird, and yet does not interfere with the use of its wings.

"Two of the legs are of the ordinary manner and support the body. The other two are perfectly normal, except that they grow backward instead of downward, and the feet are carried close next of the time.

"She weighs three and one-half pounds and was hatched on May 7 last. I have added showing the bill of sale as evidence.

"The bird is of the Rhode Island Red variety, and so highly does the owner prize it that instead of shipping it directly home he kept it with him during a four weeks' business trip.

Fire Chief Ball advised the Board that the fire hose known as "Bruce" in Engine Company 3 was shot on Saturday, October 31, by Police Officer M. McClelland, under resolution of the Board so directed.

N. Hoffman appeared before the Board to protest against an obstruction the Realty Syndicate was maintaining on Broadway, just north of the Central Bank Building. He said the merchants in that vicinity were out money every day because of the condition in which the street was kept; that dirt, rubbish and refuse stopped the drainage and created a cesspool; that they had stood it for eight months and now thought they ought to have some relief.

Mayor Olney thought the merchants in the neighborhood of that work had been over-ruled and patient and deservingly to have some consideration shown them. He also thought that in granting permits of this kind hereafter the fences surrounding the property should be kept as low as is consistent with safety in order to prevent fence advertising, which affords an inducement for high fences and their retention as long as possible to gather with a good income from the privilege.

In matter of complaint of Mr. Hunter against Con. Crowley for crowding his wife to the curb, upsetting her from her bicycle and waiting her, the Street Superintendent reported that the lady had received a satisfactory apology from Crowley and was willing to have the matter against him dropped. ## THE SUCCESS OF M. J. HYNES.

TRIUMPH OF ONE CANDIDATE AT THE SAN FRANCISCO MUNICIPAL ELECTION, WHO HAS COUNTLESS FRIENDS ON THIS SIDE OF THE BAY.

It is with great satisfaction that this newspaper is enabled to present the likeness of M. J. Hynes as the successful candidate for Public Administrator of San Francisco. In these columns on last Saturday, the assertion was made that indications pointed to "Billy" Hynes as a winner. It is the absolute truth that no nominee in the field on Tuesday in San Francisco had as many well-wishers in Oakland and Alameda county as Mr. Hynes. Now that the election has resulted advantageously to him, the prediction is generally prevalent that a second term will easily be his meed. For about one-fourth of a century, "Billy" Hynes has been known and esteemed in and around San Francisco by virtue of his rare talent and positive genius as an amateur public entertainer. His gifts as a raconteur and vocalist have ever been freely expressed in behalf of church fairs, club revels and other gatherings, where Momus, autocrat of mirth, was wooed.

Mr. Hynes, now secretary and cashier of the City of Paris, one of the foremost commercial enterprises of the United States, has been connected with that business giant since he was an urchin. Always affable clear through to the core of his nature, and blessed with a thoroughly good heart, it is no wonder that such a disposition, coupled with engaging manners, based on sterling brain power, and allied with remarkable physical health, has operated to advance him in universal esteem until he has become one of the most popular men extant in this State. So much in justification of this tribute of THE TRIBUNE to the recent political triumph of genial "Billy" Hynes.

CORNER MADE IN WHEAT.
CHARGES WITHOUT FOUNDATION.

BUY UP ALL INSURANCE AND SHUT OUT THE OUTSIDERS.

ST. LOUIS, November 7.—A plan to corner the St. Louis December wheat market by the buying of all the possible wheat in the elevator, both on the East Side and in this city, is outlined in information given to the Republic by insurance men.

Corwin H. Spencer, John T. Milliken, Thomas Akin and Herman Kuehn are mentioned as the leaders in a movement which was begun last September, which makes it seem probable that it will be absolutely impossible for outsiders to store their December wheat in St. Louis elevators.

The supply of wheat, it is said, is greater than the bulls anticipated, and to prevent delivery on the December deal they have cornered the insurance market on wheat.

Of the 120 insurance companies taking business in St. Louis, it is said that every one of them has written policies on St. Louis and East St. Louis elevators aggregating about $3,500,000.

The insurance far exceeds the viable supply in the elevators, but, by taking out insurance for the full capacity of the warehouses at the marginal price of wheat, the bulls hope to make it impossible for outsiders to store their grain, which would preclude the insuring of it, and necessarily prevent the borrowing of money on the part of the shorts, who would practically be frozen out of the market.

NEGRO ASSAULTED A SOCIETY BELLE.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—A dispatch to the Chronicle from New Orleans says: Mrs. Peter Labouisse, who was assaulted by Sam Adams, a negro, at Pass Christian, Mississippi, Thursday afternoon, her assailant afterward being lynched, was former prominent in New York Society. Mrs. Labouisse's maiden name was Isabel Aubrey Townsend and her first husband was Sam Ogden Pell of New York. Her present husband is the son of a millionaire cotton man. They reside at Pass Christian but Mrs. Labouisse occasionally comes to New Orleans on business and during the social season here they number among the most lavish entertainers. She is considered among the handsomest women in this section.

While she was the wife of Mr. Pell, Peter Labouisse met her on a visit to New York. When she was given a divorce from the millionaire New Yorker she was married to M. Labouisse who took her South and equipped one of the most magnificent homes on the Mississippi Sound. She was prominently known as Miss Townsend and is the daughter of a wealthy financier of New York.

MORMON CHURCH POLITICS.

The boldness of Mormon Apostle Heber J. Grant in announcing in a public address that he is living in polygamy is worthy of particular attention for several reasons.

First, it comes on the eve of the assembling of Congress, when his brother Apostle Reed Smoot must face strong opposition to his being allowed a seat in the Senate.

Second, it comes immediately after the Mormon church had given a signal demonstration of its power to control the politics of Utah.

Third, because Grant is himself one of the heads of the Mormon church and a leader in its councils.

The Apostle spoke to students, children of Mormons mainly, and his remarks were in the nature of a protest against the laws prohibiting polygamy. The occasion was the donation to a scholarship fund in the name of a polygamist wife, now deceased, who was a graduate of the University. Nothing was lacking in time, place, circumstance and occasion to give emphasis to the idea that the Mormon hierarchy still holds polygamy to be a cardinal tenet of the Mormon church.

It is not likely that a man so able and so highly placed in the church would express himself lightly on so important a question. At the election the other day the church gave both political parties an impressive lesson as to its power in politics. In a twinkling, it turned the political complexion of the State from Republican to Democratic. Among the leaders prominent in the movement were Apostles Heber J. Grant and Reed Smoot, the latter a Republican United States Senator-elect. Grant has also affiliated with the Republican party.

Is this a notice to the Republican party that it must not interfere too much with the peculiar marriage relations of Mormons in Arizona and New Mexico, and that Reed Smoot must be seated? It looks like it. It looks very like saying, "You must deal tenderly with the Mormon hierarchy or Utah will send two Democrats to the Senate and give its electoral vote to the Democratic candidate for President."

The Mormon church gave Utah to Bryan in 1896 and to McKinley in 1900. Weeks before the last Presidential election, the heads of the church informed Senator Hanna, chairman of the National Committee, that Utah could be counted in the Republican column. This conveyed the suggestion that the church could swing the State any way it wanted. This suggestion is now presented in a broader and more emphatic form.

Some surmise that the scheme is to have two church dignitaries in the Senate—one nominally a Republican and the other nominally a Democrat—so that the hierarchy will have a foot in each party and a voice in each caucus. We believe the church policy is deeper than that, and its purpose more far reaching. In close elections, the Mormon vote holds the balance of power in Idaho and Wyoming, and is influential in Nevada. It is the balance of power in Arizona. It is easy to see that political conditions in other parts of the country might be such as to enable the Mormon vote to control the election of a President and determine the economic policy of the nation. With eight or ten Senators at its command, and fifteen electoral votes, it may become decisive in one national campaign at least.

There is one saving grace to this aspect, however. Any political party that gained ascendancy by a deal with the Mormon hierarchy, would inevitably be swept out of power at the succeeding election. The Mormon leaders are astute and unscrupulous, but they are playing with edge-tools. They may carry their political scheme and contempt for the Federal laws to such an extent that no adherent of the Mormon church will be allowed a seat in either branch of Congress. Or they may again raise a Mormon issue in national politics as they have raised it in Utah. In that case, their entire political scheme will be blasted for a generation to come.

The habit of riding to hurdles seems to have become chronic with David Bennett Hill. When Tammany refused to permit him to name the candidate for mayor, he went off and sulked, while a number of his henchmen in New York supported the fusion ticket. Now he is clear outside the breastworks. It is said that Murphy, the Tammany chief, proposes to tomahawk him and hang his scalp in the wigwam. Nobody will mourn much.

Prior to election the New York World declared that the "leading Democrats of Manhattan, known and honored throughout the country, are in favor of the re-election of Mayor Low." Apparently the leading Democrats of Manhattan do not lead. If the result of the municipal election is to be taken as a criterion. However, such leading Democrats as John G. Carlisle, Frederic F. Coudert, James C. Carter, Ashbel P. Fitch and Perry Belmont supported Tammany with a will. For some reason or other, Low was unable to poll a large section of as they would be in China. They have lost all affinity for the African climate and have no bond of sympathy to connect them with the present day natives of Africa. They are alien in speech, habit, thought and religion. There is no African nation and no literature. African history is made up of the traditions of tribal feuds, bloody massacres, barbarous sacrifices, and the cruelties of superstitions and ferocious despots. The race has always been broken into hostile fragments, and has never found a common bond of sympathy.

If a great cotton growing industry could be landed in Africa, it would do more to promote civilization and commerce than all the agencies that have ever been invoked to uplift the African race.

If ex-Governor Budd intends to take another whirl in politics, he has made a mistake in ordering a $15,000 automobile from Paris, if we are to judge by the results of Tom Johnson's campaigning in Ohio, in a big red steam wagon. Mayor Low also campaigned in an automobile in New York, and had to hunt the cyclone cellar on election day. If ex-Governor Budd is out for amusement, his costly imported machine will serve his turn, but he will find it a hooch in politics. He had better stick to the famous buckboard. It is nearer to the hearts of the people.

The straw ballots taken by the New York newspapers were just straw—nothing more.

The tremendous political power New York City can exert on occasion was strikingly shown in the recent election. The proposition to spend $101,000,000 for the improvement of the Erie canal was defeated in the state by 135,000 majority, but the metropolis overcame this big adverse vote, and piled up a majority of 250,000 for the affirmative. A number of the cities along the canal gave heavy negative majorities. Rochester, Utica, Syracuse and Albany voted strongly against the expenditure, but New York and Buffalo carried the day. The rural voters appear to have been wiser than those in the big cities, for the weight of expert testimony is to the effect that the proposed expenditure will fail to restore the importance of the canal as a transportation highway, the grain of the West has found shorter and cheaper routes to tide-water, and will not again seek its ancient outlet through New York via the Erie canal.

By comparing the returns Governor Cummins can easily convince himself of the superiority of the Ohio idea over the Iowa article.

Charles M. Schwab has discovered that the surest way to bust a trust, is to skin it to a finish.

WONDERFUL TALE.

British Ship Was Attacked By Enormous Sea Serpent.

The Glengrath, a Liverpool ship, has returned from the fishing grounds in the North Sea, and the Captain and crew, numbering in all ten men, report a terrific encounter with the sea serpent in the North Sea. They were some eighty miles from land, and were out on the break of dawn the hands turned up to try the draught nets. Suddenly a tremendous commotion arose on the weather quarter scarcely 40 yards away.

One of the crew remarked "whales," but the commotion was a huge dark body rose and made for the strainer. The men were almost paralyzed at the awful sight of the monster, which came on with a swaying motion. When 20 feet off the vessel it reared to a great height and with a loud hissing noise plunged down again. A second more and the vessel was lifted at least six feet as the monster worked its way through the water beneath her. The vessel took a great dip by the bows and shipped a huge sea, washing the men overboard and forcing the engine room, cabin and fore-castle.

The utmost consternation prevailed among the bewildered crew, as the steamer first looked like capsizing. By the time things were righted the monster was some distance off, but to the horror of the crew it was seen turning and coming on again at a furious pace.

One of the fishing hands appeared the only one who had not lost his head, and he dashed below and got his gun. When the animal was 15 yards away he fired at the head. Whether he hit it is not known, but it dived, and a long, sinuous body followed, wriggling like a serpent, but traveling at a great speed. The monster's undulations could be seen. It was twice the length of the Glengrath, or nearly 100 feet. It had a head like a sea horse, with a long mane or fin down the neck, great green glittering eyes, an enormous mouth and teeth. The description tallies with a monster seen by Montrose fishermen on Wednesday.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

The Women's Federal Political Association of Australia has decided to bring forward its president as a candidate for the senate of the Australian community in the forthcoming federal elections. There is some dispute as to whether a woman may legally sit in the Australian parliament, though she is entitled to vote for members of the same, and the purpose of settling the point that a feminine candidate is being brought forward.

In one country at least women's dress is regulated entirely by the day of the week. In Islam every woman is a living calendar. On Sunday silk, with a parure of rubies, is worn; Monday brings a silver and white dress and a necklace of moon stones; Tuesday is dedicated to light red, with coral ornaments; Wednesday is devoted to green, with emeralds; Thursday sees a display of variegated colors, with cat's eyes; Friday the lady is arrayed in pale blue, with flashing diamonds, and Saturday in more sober, darker hues, with sapphires to match.

Not long ago a firm of house furnishers in Cleveland advertised for fresco painters and received in reply a letter from a woman decorator, who said that besides painting frescoes she could plaster prime walls, canvas them and take off paper. A high scaffold, she asserted, had no terrors for her, and she could even work on a swinging scaffold outside if necessary. She could climb a scaffold without a ladder, and had worked on the domes of churches. From her letter it was gathered that she had learned her trade from her father, with whom she worked, and she added that she dressed for her work so as not to attract attention, and therefore could ply her trade in any place, no matter how public.

Women's inexplicable aversion to beginning on the first page of a sheet of letter paper, and following the pages in their natural order is well known. Men find it distracting, and even women correspondents confess that—in others—it is an eccentric practice not calculated to meditation and prayer. Beyond this no one dreamed of going until this feminine peculiarity served actually to invalidate a woman's will. The late Isabella Andrews, of Brooklyn, it seems, was one of the women who delight to treat the first page of a sheet of writing paper as if it were the second, the fourth as if it were the third, and the second as if it were the fourth. She made her will, page 100. Starting on the first that way, she jumped the provisions of the will over onto the third page, which she marked two, and wound up by subscribing and attesting the document on the second page. The marked three, she used a printed formula, which was intended to be attested on the reverse side of the first page—what in ordinary correspondence would be the second page. The will was rejected, and the Supreme Court, to which recourse was had, upheld the rejection on the ground that a will to be legal must be signed at the end, not in the middle, as the Andrews will was.

WATERPROOFING ROADS.

Use of Tar Prevents Dust and Saves Wear and Tear.

Automobile owners and the driving public as well will watch with interest an experiment made at Westfield, N. J., yesterday in the use of tar sprinklers over macadamized roads to abolish those twin nuisances, dust and mud.

In France this scheme has been tried. It is said for some time much satisfaction to the automobilists. The plan is simple. The surface of the macadamized road is cleared of dust and loose material. Then a boiling tar is sprinkled over the road lightly, and the screenings put back and rolled. The tar sinks into the hard bed, binding the stone anew and forming a new face on top. It is claimed that it also waterproofs the roadbed and adds new life to it.

Macadamized roads turn into dust and blow away. Ruts are formed by constant wear in soft spots and when it rains a pasty mud collects that is just as objectionable as the dust. The tar sprinkling is intended to do away with all this.

In the experiment recently a piece of an ordinary country road, 18 feet wide, just outside Westfield, N. J., was taken. Two sections, about 100 feet long, were used. On one the tar was run over the roadbed with the dust and screenings just as they lay. On the surface and then the tar was applied. In both instances the results seemed to meet with the approval of the road-making experts present.

The tar was put on in a very crude fashion by hand from a big watering can. It had penetrated nearly an inch into the roadbed only three hours, and in a short time after it was laid there was no tracking on it, and it did not splatter on wheels driven over it.

H. W. Merkel, chief forester and constructor of the zoological section of Bronx Park, said he was glad to hear of the use of the tar on the Bronx Park road, as he was going to try it on the Bronx Park next week on a section of East River walk along the banks of the Bronx. A section of Croseye avenue, Bath Beach, Brooklyn, is also being experimented on under the supervision of Director of Highways Fort.

The cost of treating a road in this way with tar is estimated at between $100 and $300 a mile for a road 16 feet wide. This would require 3000 gallons of tar to the mile.—New York Herald.

Fulton was exhibiting the model of his steamboat.

"And don't you think," he asked, "I have invented a wonderful benefit to mankind?"

"I don't know," replied the carping critics. "Just think it will make the Staten Island ferry possible."

Horror-stricken by the suggestion, he was tempted to destroy the product of his genius.

WHAT PASTORS MASTER OF THE PALACE HOTEL, SAN FRANCISCO PLAN FOR TOMORROW.

ANNOUNCEMENTS MADE BY THE MINISTERS IN LOCAL CHURCHES.

This man Dowle is trying to reach the people by machinery and billingsgate. He has entered New York with a host of 3000. Madison Square Garden has been bursting with multitudes. Dowle is the P. T. Barnum of evangelists. He has built a city of 10,000 inhabitants. Let us give him credit for hypnotic influence, power of leadership and for uttering words that drop like gall. He has everything but a message. Therefore the people left the Madison Square Garden while the prophet was widely waving his arms and shouting for order. Elijah was always a gentleman. So was every other prophet. John the Baptist was dressed in skins, but he had the heart of a man. Dowle raves and raves. He uses the language of the saloon, especially when referring to ministers. He referred to Dr. Hanson in words that The Pacific will not publish. Speaking of Dr. Hillis, he said: "I'll spank him well as I spanked him in Chicago. I did it once and I'll do it again for his infernal lying. I can use perpendicular English and I can fight and I'll spank 'em good."

One of the best things the Byrstander has heard about the Dowle meetings in New York City, comes from a policeman who has been on duty in the meetings. He says he has discovered the Dowle method of enforcing honesty among the wardens of Zion who pass the collection plates. The officer said: "The prophet has a bottle of flies. He gives each collector a lively fly in his left hand and a basket in his right. When they come back with the baskets of coin they have to let the prophet see the fly buzz out of their hand."—Byrstander in the Pacific.

Rev. Dr. Brown, of Oakland, informed his brethren of the Methodist Ministers' Union last Monday that he is rather than poor sermons a responsible for the solemnity of the pews during the outpourings of the pulpit. The habit of napping is becoming more prevalent than ever, according to Brother Brown, who advises preachers to stimulate the methods of the street fakir who never fails to hold his audience. Possibly if the pulpit returned to the old-fashioned practice of preaching faith and morals, more attentive and sympathetic congregations would be attracted, and one of the main provocations to dozelessness, not harridan air, would be removed. It would be an experiment worth while, anyway. We charge our Methodist friends nothing for the suggestion.—The Monitor.

Asked for an expression of opinion as to the proper attitude of Catholics toward remarried divorcees, Cardinal Gibbons writes: "Catholics cannot take upon themselves to regulate the customs of society, situated as they are in this country. Therefore, he would not say that they should not meet married divorcees in general gatherings. But he would advise them to invite such people to their social functions, nor to accept any invitation from them to theirs."

Member of State Board of Harbor Commissioners of California and Yosemite Valley Commissioner.

On a recent Friday morning a representative of THE TRIBUNE chanced to be in the vicinity of the Auditor's office of the Palace Hotel of San Francisco, and he was deeply impressed by the spectacle that there met his gaze. Before the cashier's window, at that point was a long and constantly changing line of people. Components of that queue were waiters, bell-boys, cooks and other servants of the San Francisco world-renowned hostelry. It was evident that thousands of dollars of wages were being paid at that time, and the idea arose: What an array of help was required in order to operate such a vast establishment as is the Palace Hotel.

It is possible that not in the entire world is there such an adept innkeeper as Hon. John C. Kirkpatrick, general manager of the Palace Hotel and its adjuncts, the Grand Hotel, Imperial Hotel, Palace, and the other hostels of the ancient Tabard Inn of Southwark, London, scene illustrious in the annals of Geoffrey Chaucer's Canterbury Pilgrims, was no more astute a business man than Colonel Kirkpatrick has evidenced himself to be.

Under the administration of Tavern-lord Kirkpatrick the Palace Hotel has gained a vogue with travelers which age cannot diminish for many decades.

It is not hard to discern the reason for the extraordinary prestige secured by the Palace Hotel. Of itself an elegant and commodious establishment, the Palace enjoys a sovereign reputation for its blending—due to discipline, quietly imparted, and fully acknowledged—of savoir faire and savoir vivre. Cuisine is acme of perfection and all other complements, executed by finical guest or capricious occasional patron, are in unison with that brilliant Savoyard department. Thus it is that Kirkpatrick and the Palace are linked almost inseparably in the thought of globe trotters "at home" in Prague, Manila, Beyrout, Moscow, Caliao, Kobe and other abodes of mundane men and women.

One cannot call to mind an hotel master anywhere who is such a popular personage in the social, business and political fields as is Hon. John C. Kirkpatrick. On various occasions Colonel Kirkpatrick has been urged to become a candidate for Mayor of San Francisco, and his name is even now heard in St. Jovel's quarters in connection with the position of United States Senator for California.

An exalted political career has charms for Colonel Kirkpatrick, but he has firmly waived advances aside when besought to allot much of his superb ministerial power to the municipal, State or national civic service. During his years of application to the imposing task of developing the hotel properties of the late Federal Senator William Sharon, Colonel Kirkpatrick has grown buxom in his opinion that his status and activity in the commercial arena yields compensation of more gratifying account to him than would be derivable from official vocation of a very high governmental degree. Hence it is that the favorite problem of his cogitations is how to enhance still further the hold that Sharon hotels have upon the fancy of the great flitting public.

San Francisco and California, and even the Pacific coast, will continue to be proud of the existence of the Palace Hotel, and the general verdict of the multitudes of interest of critics must be one of elation that the arch spirit in the conduct of that Palace Hotel is Hon. John C. Kirkpatrick.

POINTS TO YOU
How Coffee Sets Its Grip and is Never Suspect.

It is surprising how many people never suspect that coffee is causing all their trouble until they are finally knocked out or some disease caused by coffee has become chronic and almost incurable.

Even in chronic cases the chances are a shift from coffee to Postum Food Coffee will build him back one up and in time effect a cure.

Sometimes this happens with surprising promptness. A lady of Syracuse, Nebraska, says "Last spring a year ago my doctor told me I would have to stop drinking coffee. I had heard trouble so bad that the least excitement would cause me to choke up so I could scarcely get my breath and I was so nervous I could not bear to have the children move around the house."

"Doctor told my husband to get Postum for me but before he did so moved to the country and I fell back on milk and water but even such exertion as climbing a flight of stairs caused my heart to hurt; so I would feel sick and faint."

"This continued all summer until in the fall we again moved to Syracuse. There I got some Postum and began to feel so much better after using one package that I continued its use altogether and I am now better in health than I have ever been before in eight years. I am stronger and id fleshier than I ever was and have not had the headache but three times since I began to use Postum a year ago. The change certainly seems wonderful for I have had no return of the heart trouble at all and I never get tired telling what Postum has done for me." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Michigan.

ply their children with spending money is one of the principal causes of crime among the boys and girls of New York City.

Lack of knowledge of the first principles of practical civics he said, is another reason found for innocent offenses of mischievous children.

"In many cases," the Justice declares, "the parents are respectable, hard-working people in many of the children have good school records but the difficulty is they have no money to spend so that their desire to have what other children have—candy and the like—cannot be gratified. If they seem a little thing but I firmly believe that many a child would be saved from the initial wrong step if the parent would make him a small allowance, even two or three cents a week. In the cases where such a course is pursued the child usually becomes a sort of little business man, husbanding his resources and willing to spend no more than his allowance."

TOWN TALK.

This week's Town Talk contains an exceptionally strong bit of correspondence from the Orient, written by a well-known California newspaper man. It tells of the ways of the missionary in China, who lives on the fat of the land while pursuing the soul-saving industry. There's a fine essay, also, "The Four Jacks," by Harry Cowell. The Saunterer tells how Schmitt won the game, and why Crocker lost. The Hush family's affairs are discussed and there are other Saunterer stories to interest Oaklanders. What the guests were at the Benco-Stephenson wedding is detailed, and the latest engagement rumor reported. There are five pages of interesting dramatic news, and all the departments are readable. Something about our local school department which amuses the teachers who are the victims.

TODAY'S NEWS LETTER.

If there is any consolation in finding out how it happened, adherents of Crocker may gain a crumb of comfort from the political article by Junius, in today's San Francisco News Letter.

The News Letter has very good fiction this week, and its article on the troubles of a press agent will create much amusement.

"The Ladies Will Have to Shave" is the startling title of Lady Algie's fashion article.

The Looker On department never had a better assortment of stories and gossip. Some of the most notable people in town are subjects of the interesting and amusing little tales that are told by this ubiquitous chronicler of club and society life.

As usual, the News Letter's literary, dramatic, financial, insurance and automobile departments are full of the best material, and the society columns are complete and authentic.

What Popular Woman Has to Stand in Society.

THE OPENING OF THE SAN FRANCISCO SEASON.

The social season opened for San Francisco last Saturday afternoon when the first debutantes of the season, Miss Christine Pomeroy and Miss Lucy Gwin Coleman, made their initial bow to society at a large tea given at the Pomeroy home on the northeast corner of Hyde and Clay streets. It was a thousand plies that the death last spring of Mrs. Pomeroy's father prevented that lady from standing by her daughter's side and witnessing an event to which she has looked forward for years, for Mrs. Carter Pomeroy is a society woman par excellence. But, though invisible, everyone felt that she was the presiding genius of the perfectly appointed tea. Everything went as if by clock-work. Six hundred cards had been sent out and the Pomeroy house is one of those commodious old-fashioned houses with many rooms but not exceedingly large ones. Of course the tea was a crush, especially during the later hours. The hours were from four to seven but the crowd lingered until eight and most of the men came after six. The decorations were beautiful, almost every flower in the room being a gift while the arrangement of them was the work of the ladies of the house, themselves. Over a hundred and twenty friends sent flowers to Miss Pomeroy beside the load of blossoms sent to Miss Coleman. Some of these came so late that there was no time to unpack them and the next day many hospitals and friends were remembered by these fortunate and popular young women.

The reception hall, where the debutantes and Miss Pomeroy's aunt, Mrs. William Gilman Thompson, stood, was glorious in white and yellow chrysanthemums and red madrone berries, all arranged high and falling in a sort of graceful canopy from baskets or artistically caught together bits of matting. The large living room where refreshments were served had a long table down the center. This table was done in huge bunches of American Beauty roses and red dahlias and the room was also done in roses. A brass coal hod was filled with magnificent Hannah Hobart carnations forming a handsome color scheme with the brass.

Mrs. Thompson wore a handsome gown of lavender and green which was becoming to her pretty gray hair. Miss Pomeroy wore a white dress ornamented with fringe with a turquoise matrix brooch for color and she carried a large spray of lilies of the valley tied with white ribbons. Miss Coleman also wore white.

There were some beautiful gowns worn by the guests. Mrs. Rudolph Spreckels, in a white embroidered gown with a white plumed hat was stunning, as usual, and Mrs. Eleanor Martin is looking well since her return from Newport in a black gown with a pretty alighted bonnet. A large diamond cross at the throat was her sole ornament. Mrs. Chauncey Winslow wore a handsome white gown and hat and Mrs. Harry Mendell looked pretty in a biscuit gown with a pink poppy hat. Almost all of those who assisted in looking after the guests wore white gowns and none was prettier than the one worn by Mrs. Norman McLaren who presented the guests as they came to Mrs. Thompson whose years of residence in New York had rendered some of the names and faces unfamiliar to her.

MRS. MARTIN TO ENTERTAIN THE BUDS.

Mrs. Eleanor Martin, who is the most famed-upon woman in San Francisco society, will give a luncheon to the various debutantes. She will be quite general in her invitations and this will be the first opportunity the buds of the different sets will have to meet one another. A few of the last year's girls will also be invited.

Mrs. Martin is a generous and indefatigable hostess and she is certainly very popular, though it sometimes seems that her friends are almost too demonstrative. However, Mrs. Martin has it in her power to make it very pleasant for any young girl or matron she fancies and so one can scarcely blame the buds and married belles from gushing over her.

MISS GERTRUDE DUTTON A DEBUTANTE.

Miss Gertrude Dutton came out at a large luncheon given by her mother, Mrs. W. J. Dutton, at the University Club this week. Miss Dutton belongs to the set in which the Dunns, the Colburns, and the Paytons are popular. Miss Dutton is rather a pretty girl and has lately traveled extensively, which, of course, makes her more interesting.

AN EXCLUSIVE COTILLON CLUB FORMED.

Some of the debutantes of this and last season, including Miss Emily Wilson, Miss Gertrude Ellis, Miss Pomeroy, Miss Coleman and the Misses King, have formed a cotillon club at the home of Mrs. Eyre. There will be thirty girl members and a cotillon will be given each month throughout the season—at the homes of the members when these are large enough. When they are not, the hostess of the evening must hire a hall. Thirty young men will be chosen by the popular and secret ballot to be invited each time and the vote will determine the popularity of the younger dancing men of San Francisco. It is not a bad idea and one that might be imitated by the younger set on this side of the bay, but we have more dancing clubs for the young set on this side, which removes the necessity for that sort of thing. Most of the dancing clubs across the bay have died, and with Mrs. Salisbury away there is no one to revive them. Mr. Greenway's Friday Night Club still lives, but it is the property of the older girls and does not furnish much of a field for debutantes.

ENTERTAINING FOR MISS MOORE.

No prospective bride in Oakland for many years has been entertained as much as Miss Jacqueline Moore, which strongly attests that young lady's popularity. Something should be conceded, too, to Miss Moore's cleverness for she announced her engagement just before the beginning of the autumn season when a great many of these entertainments would have been given, anyway, and she has been the motif. All of the Moores are popular, but Miss Jacqueline perhaps enjoys society more than either of her sisters, which makes a difference. There never was a jollier, more attractive girl than Miss Moore and I am heartily sorry that she is likely to make her home in Portland after she becomes Mrs. Valentine.

THE FISHER THEATER PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Fisher gave a theater party on Saturday night at the Macdonough followed by a dainty supper at the Athenian Club. There were twelve in the party, including, beside the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert L. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. J. Walter Scott, Mr. and Mrs. R. C.

MRS. ISAAC L. REQUA

Craft, Mr. and Mrs. Wells Whittemore, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Layman.

MISS CLARA LEWIS MUCH FETED.

The Hubbards do well to welcome cordially the charming girl of Welsh parentage who is betrothed to their son, Charlie Hubbard. Miss Lewis is a beautiful girl whom Charlie Hubbard met in Boston where she was studying music, but her parents reside in San Francisco, where Elwyn Lewis is a pianist of considerable ability and a good accompanist. His wife is Mme. Abbie Carrington-Lewis, a music teacher who came here last year from London. She has since had a large class in San Francisco. Miss Lewis is a delightful young girl with an exquisite contralto voice which she uses beautifully. At the California Club last week she sang two songs by Charminade, "The Silver Ring" and "Si Mes Vers," very beautifully indeed. She not only has a beautiful voice but she has most delightful manners as well and her expression is at once coy and alluring. Her voice is of the sympathetic variety and draws you as, I think, as only a contralto voice can.

Last week Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard entertained a select company at cards in Miss Lewis' honor. Miss Lewis and Mr. Hubbard will make an unusually good-looking couple.

TO BECOME A TRAINED NURSE.

It is said that Miss Winifred Burdge is about to study to become a trained nurse. It must take great fortitude on the part of a young girl to leave a beautiful home. The younger Miss Burdge, it is said, cares but little for society, and has a perfect passion for nursing and medicine. Miss Burdge is a very clever girl with a quick and brilliant mind and she should prove an apt pupil.

INFORMAL AFFAIRS FOR VISITORS.

One has much more fun at a small affair and we are always glad of a motif. Mrs. Egbert Stone had a few friends at an informal tea yesterday afternoon to meet her cousin, Mrs. John R. Farrell, who is spending the winter in Oakland. Miss Whittemore is also a cousin of Mrs. Stone and is her guest at present. She is a most attractive girl with bewitching black eyes. Her sister was a great beauty, and the wife of Harry Wise.

THE DECAY OF MINSTRELSY.

Seeing Haverly's Minstrels at the California the other night I am reminded of the decay of minstrelsy. How are the mighty fallen. Even within my young recollection, minstrelsy was something to conjure with the newest jokes, the most up-to-date songs were all to be heard behind the burnt cork. But as vaudeville rose, minstrelsy declined and now the best of the comedians of old days are either under the sod or at the Orphanum, where they earn a great deal more money for a short time than they received in the olden days. Even the much-lauded Billy Van is not as good as he is supposed to be. He has a trick of swallowing his words at the end of a phrase which is funny for the first twenty or thirty times but becomes monotonous the last forty or fifty. Billy Van, they say, was once a member of the New York swim and a favorite at Newport, where he ran through his money and became stranded. Before this he had amused people for fun; now he amuses them for compensation. Presumably he dropped the rest of his name with his finery and became instead of Van Ronselear or whatever he was, plain Billy Van.

There is but one good voice in the

MRS. HUGH CRAIG

Haverly troupe, and but few good dancers. The first part falls rather flat but the second part where vaudeville sketches are introduced is much better and shows the tendency of which I speak. One turn or perhaps it would be better to call it a "fall" is a lesson in roller skating and is side-splittingly funny. A musical number is not bad and an acrobatic number is rather good. The last tableau, showing the "Suwannee River," by moonlight is beautiful scenically.

MISS JENNIE DUNPHY'S HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

The proverbial groping and stumbling about was not necessary on Halloween night for the moon shone in all her splendor. The beautiful Dunphy residence on Washington street across the bay, was ablaze with light and magnificent with flowers in lieu of pumpkins and candles. The evening was too warm for the usual drift-wood fire and the favors were fans. (I hope our Scotch and Eastern friends will take notice.) Instead of ghost stories and uncanny things, H. Jerome Fossell read the palms and hilarity reigned instead of fear. Music added to the enjoyment and a veritable feast brought to a close a Halloween party long to be remembered by the fortunate few who were present. Miss Williams outdid herself in decorating on this occasion. The large and spacious hall was all in green. Palms and potted plants were artistically placed, and little green lights made the effect quite like moonlight. The drawing room scheme was yellow and white, and chrysanthemums were the flowers used. The music-room had red carnations in profusion; the dining-room was the "chef d'oeuvre." Lighted chalets and Chinese pagodas were on mantel and buffet and strung from the ceiling. Bamboo was used in quantity and formed a kind of bower about the table which had for a centerpiece a great bowl of long stemmed American Beauty roses, and here and there were candles hidden by grotesque shades. An amusing feature of the table decorations was the ice cream. Each guest received an individual ice representing his fad or peculiarity.

In these attractive surroundings frogs a la poulette, hot birds and cold bottles made one forget time and tomorrow and the "woo sma' hours" crept on unawares. But Halloween only comes once a year. Miss Dunphy's guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Wesley Burnett, Mrs. Morris Newton, Mrs. Lucie May Hayes, Dr. and Mrs. Cool, Frederick A. Greenwood, Richard M. Hotelling, Dr. Arnold Genthe, Mrs. Emerson Warfield, Harry Hall Cosgriff.

TWO POPULAR BRIDES TO BE.

Many luncheons and dinners are being given for Miss Jacqueline Moore and Miss Edna Barry, and a dance at the Golf Club House was given in their honor on Halloween night by the Thursday Afternoon Club. Miss Burdge gave a luncheon at Arbor Villa for Miss Moore on Tuesday and Miss Ethel Valentine gives an informal affair for her prospective sister-in-law next Wednesday. Both girls have received cups galore; and I have heard of lots more to come.

AUTOMOBILING BY MOONLIGHT.

Mr. and Mrs. John Spring have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wells, at their beautiful Fruitvale home, where they gave a dinner on Thursday in their honor. The whole party of twelve then went automobiling by moonlight.

TO BE A REAL DUCHESS NEXT TUESDAY.

November the tenth is the propitious day and St. Thomas Fifth avenue church, New York, the place, that Miss May Goelet and the Duke of Roxburgh will exchange $1,000,000 in spot cash for a grand title. The wedding is to be an imposing affair, and the church lavishly decorated in chrysanthemums, which means something in New York. Miss Beatrice Mills, who is to be one of the bridesmaids, gives somewhat of a California flavor to the otherwise foreign atmosphere.

Another New York wedding that will prove interesting to Californians is that of Miss Rutherford, the eldest daughter of Mrs. George Crocker, to young Kearney. Active preparations are now going on in their Fifth avenue residence, but the day has not been given out as yet.

MRS. GEO. PERKINS' LUNCHEON.

The most elaborate luncheon of the week was the one given by Mrs. George Perkins, Jr., at her home on Bella Vista Heights, in honor of her sister, Miss Mabel Quatman, whose engagement to Lieut. Mitchell was recently announced.

Since the announcement Miss Quatman has been extensively entertained but nothing could be more unique and original than the luncheon planned for her by her sister.

The Perkins home on Bella Vista Heights was very artistic. Mrs. Perkins always personally planning the decorations of her home.

The drawing room showed a mass of gorgeously colored chrysanthemums, and the hall was a very pretty study in great white chrysanthemums.

The dining room was one of the daintiest studies in color effects seen here this season. It is very difficult to get anything original in luncheon effects, anything different from what other hostesses have, but Mrs. Perkins succeeded admirably in the new and unique scheme of decorations that she planned.

The color scheme of the dining room was green and white. All about the room were candelabra in green shaded effects, and in the corners were massed up bamboo and gorgeous long stemmed chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Perkins must have been pleased at the pleasure so frankly expressed by her guests at the very beautiful picture the tables presented. The centerpiece represented a beautiful pond-lily lake. It was a large centerpiece, and the lake was outlined by ferns and maiden hair. The clear lake was covered with beautiful water lilies, brought from Golden Gate park—the great glossy leaves, and the beautiful white lilies floating on the water carrying out in an admirable and unique way, the color scheme of green and white.

Nearly a hundred picturesque gold fish darted here and there in the lake, and the beautiful centerpiece held the interest of the guests, all through the daintily served luncheon.

Wedding tulle was carried in an effective manner from the chandelier to the different parts of the table, the whole study in decoration being prettily carried out, and the effect being unique and picturesque.

Mrs. Perkins' guests were Miss Quatman, Mrs. Oscar Luning, Mrs. J. Loran Pease, Mrs. Frederick Morse, Mrs. John P. Connors, Mrs. Felton Taylor, Mrs. Joseph Mathews, Mrs. Samuel Wiseman, Mrs. M. de la Montanya, Mrs. Samuel Ruteau.

Mrs. Perkins' gown was very elaborate, of white flowered silk and chiffon, the whole skirt beautifully appliqued in black lace.

Mrs. Joseph Mathews wore one of the daintiest gowns of the year, a cream colored crepe, made over taffeta, with the most exquisite arrangement of lace and baby ribbon in corn colored tones. It was a very beautiful gown, and was worn with a picture hat of black.

Mrs. Pease wore a handsome gown of gray, with lace, one of her trousseau gowns. Her big white picture hat was made from her wedding veil, and was trimmed with wide white ostrich plumes.

Mrs. Luning wore a reception gown of blue flowered silk, trimmed with handsome lace, and worn with a white hat with white plumes.

Miss Quatman wore an imported gown in green effect, trimmed in ecru lace, the whole set off very quaintly with a wide collar, and one of the new belts, with a wide gold buckle.

Mrs. Felton Taylor's gown was of white trimmed in lace, and it was worn with a black hat, with a long black ostrich plume.

Mrs. Frederick Morse's gown was very becoming, of a dainty light tone of blue, made with a very long train, and elaborately trimmed with lace.

An interesting menu was served, and after luncheon Miss Quatman was good enough to sing for the guests, and it was a rare pleasure to listen to her superb voice. She sang "Dreaming" and "My Rosary," her superb voice showing equally well on the very high notes, or on the mezzo range, where the show all the full, sustained strength of the trained contralto. It is no wonder that she stands at the head of the list of musicians in San Francisco, and that she fills so ably the difficult role of first soprano in St. Mary's cathedral.

Mrs. Perkins' luncheon for her sister, was in many ways a great pleasure to the invited guests.

The exact date of the wedding of Miss Quatman and Lieut. Mitchell has not been set, but it will be early in the year. It is to be a naval wedding of course, the decorations all flags, and the groom in full naval uniform, and that kind of a wedding is very picturesque.

ENVY FOR THE POPULAR WOMAN.

There are those who from the outside ranks have been known to envy the "popular woman." But, indeed, she has not an easier lot than anyone else in the world. She has to work hard enough for every inch of her popularity, and she has to keep up a watchfulness that must make her long for the silent, solitary desert on occasions.

You see, it is this way. "The popular woman" knows so many sets of people. Perhaps that is why she is popular. And if she gives any social event at her home for one set, all the other sets have it in for her. "They take a swash at you," says the Popular Woman, mournfully. The English may not be elegant, but it entirely expresses the situation.

And did you ever see two different sets meet on a calling day. It reminds you of nothing so much as the old-time game of see-saw, with the poor hostess as the candlestick. Now it is this side, now it is the other—but you never have both at once. Either side will quite cheerfully talk to the hostess, but they won't talk to each other. "Not for pay," says the hostess, after they've gone.

There seems to be a dead line, a bit of frozen regime, that the sets will not cross, and the "popular woman" has her patience taxed to the utmost to keep the conversational ball rolling.

And the "old friends," the family friends who should be cruel for a moment. But they have a way of letting her know that she is "forgetting old friends" now that she is so popular.

And she cannot possibly go every where she is asked, and the invitations she must decline score again; for in the long run, social life is not easy a minute of the time, and the woman who leads a quiet life "far from the maddening crowd" need not specially envy the "popular woman" of whom society demands much.

WHAT IS LIFE WITHOUT HUMOR.

Life would be a dreary waste without the bits of humor that come to brighten it. And among the very funny things one meets are often the newspaper mistakes. They are not at all funny to the editor, who promptly starts on an investigating tour, but they are funny enough to send the rest of us into spasms on occasions.

One of the most amusing was the little mix-up of gowns and decorations in a recent society column. No doubt it was written correctly, but here is the awful result:

"Miss Ethel Brown wore a beautiful gown of Jack O'Lanterns all trimmed in white chiffon."

"The decorations were very effective, and Miss Smith winked and blinked and twinkled from a background of palms."

Now those are not the right names, and the real names were of prominent people whom we all know, and which only made the mistake more amusing.

When you try to mix gowns and decorations the effect is usually fatal.

SOCIAL SEASON HAS COMMENCED.

The social round has begun again, and each day carries its own date.

MISS MABEL QUATMAN.

On Thursday Mrs. George Perkins Jr., gave an elaborate luncheon in honor of her sister, Miss Quatman, whose engagement to Lieutenant Mitchell of the Navy has been announced. Miss Quatman has a magnificent voice.

Most of them are really interesting, because there has been "a moil" for the entertainment. The brides and brides-elect have been popular, and one has been glad to meet them, and happy engagements this year seem to have been the order of the hour. Even the old croaker, who sees everything through an atmosphere of pessimism, really cannot find much fault with the American girl, the kind one meets in Oakland. She is showing herself just as willing to marry the poor young man and help him along, as well as her grandmother. And so you see homes like those of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Burrell, and Mr. and Mrs. George Clarke Davis, where the bride is "doing her own work" and is very proud of it. And the rest of us are immensely interested in their experiment.

Mrs. William R. Davis has sent out cards for next Thursday, in honor of her new daughter, Mrs. George Clarke Davis, of whom the family is very proud.

Mr. and Mrs. George Davis are keeping house in the cottage which was so long the home of the William R. Davises, and where the groom's boyhood days were passed.

The wedding of Mr. Davis and Miss Lowden was a very quiet one, and now Mrs. Davis is quietly open her large home and asking all the friends of both families to meet the bride.

The Davis home is admirably adapted to entertaining, and the drawing room is perfect from the artistic point of view. It looks very foreign, too, for you know abroad they do not crowd drawing rooms with meaningless bric-a-brac. There are some fine marbles, one of them a magnificent specimen of Raphael's work, and the "sheep picture" which Mr. Davis purchased at the world's fair in Chicago, has attracted general interest through California.

Mrs. Davis has sent out over 400 invitations, and she and Mrs. George Clarke Davis will be assisted by Mrs. Lowden, Mrs. James Moffitt, Mrs. Geo. C. Edwards, Mrs. Charles Cotton, Mrs. Hayward Thomas, Mrs. William Gruenhagen, Miss May Coogan, Miss Ada Kenna, Miss Jacqueline Moore, Miss Edna Barry, Miss Clara Chabot.

The hours are from 3 to 5, and bids fair to be one of the brilliant social gatherings of the winter.

MRS. PEASE'S TEA A LARGE SUCCESS.

Among the largely attended teas of the week, was the one given on Wednesday by Mrs. J. Loran Pease, at the family home on Harrison street.

Mrs. Pease hurried out her cards that she might have the "at home" before the weather broke.

For be it known that unless a woman has a conscience, one of the New England kind, she will not go to a tea in the rain. It is a matter that you will hear discussed everywhere. There are two sides to it as usual. One side calmly presents an array of facts that you really cannot dispute. You see there are not cabs enough to take us all. Some of us invariably get left. Then if we do get safely to the great event, we don't get home all right. We have been known to fight with our best friends, in the most awful fashion over this very matter of cabs. Did you ever try being the last one to go, looking despairingly for help, while your hostess, unspokeably weary, tries to do her duty to the last gasp.

I have tried it, and like the girl in Bluebeard's Story, I could have shrieked, "Sister Ann, Sister Ann, do you see any one coming?" People who have private carriages are not so much better off. It is different in the east, but here, we have to be very careful how we give orders.

"I didn't like to ask the coachman to bring the horses out," you will hear more than once in the winter. You wonder what he is for, what the horses are for, but you appreciate the situation, you know of our absolute bondage—it is the servants who hold the fort.

And on a rainy day you really have fears for your winter hat. If the rain spoils the nodding plumes in which you take such pride, you know you won't get any more, and your best hat is a wreck for the winter. There are those who object to arriving at a tea with an umbrella and goloshes—such is the pride of womankind.

Now, that is all on one side of the question. Once upon a time, on a rainy day, I was the only guest at a tea. The situation was awful! But that is another story. It is of value because it gave me the other side of the picture. And here is also the other side of the rainy day tea. Your hostess has gone to a great deal of trouble, and her humiliation and disappointment at a social function will be very keen. The most forlorn thing on the face of the globe, is the tea to which nobody comes, and the most pathetic picture in the world is the hostess who tries to smile and smile, and to pretend its all bright and she doesn't care. The bravery of some women!

"Mindful of all this, the woman who has a conscience and a kind heart as well, will always go to a tea on a rainy day. She needs wear the best things in her wardrobe, and the umbrella wouldn't matter, neither will the goloshes—she can carry with her a light heart and a smiling, happy face, and make the little worried hostess feel that her hospitable effort is appreciated. That sounds very much like a sermon, but it isn't—it's only a bit of common sense. I know more than one hostess, who wants to give a big tea, but she is afraid of the weather, and she doesn't want to face a possible failure. And here am I rambling many times around good old Robin Hood's barn, instead of going on with my description of Mrs. Pease's "at home."

It poured rain the night before, but in the afternoon the clouds lifted, and a brilliant assemblage filled the large drawing-room of the residence. The home was exceedingly artistic, many of Mrs. Pease's friends having sent her beautiful flowers. There were quantities of gorgeous chrysanthemums, the whole making a most interesting floral background, against which Mrs. Pease received her guests. She wore her wedding gown of white liberty satin, very beautifully trimmed in lace, and she carried a bouquet of Stephanotis.

Handsome gowns were the order of the afternoon. Miss Irma and Miss Adah Brown wore the gowns in which they officiated as bridesmaids for their friend, Miss Mabel Gage, now Mrs. Pease.

Mrs. Allender wore a gown which attracted general attention. It was exceedingly quaint and old-fashioned, and she made an interesting picture in it. The gown has a history, it was one of her mother's, worn in the days when Mrs. Rabe was a girl. I was going to say "when she was young." Only nobody is old any more, least of all Mrs. Rabe.

Mrs. Felton Taylor wore a gown of white trimmed with old lace. She is simply dear in a receiving party. And that is saying a good deal for "the receiving party" is proverbially selfish. It looks after its friends, who find themselves beautifully served, and as for the others "well they must just take their chance." That last remark comes from a recent "receiving party."

Mrs. Charles H. Lovell was charming in white, and made a pretty picture. You can always depend on Mrs. Lovell and Mrs. Taylor, to provide for the passing guest, and to show her some little courtesy.

Mrs. Thomas Crellin wore an exceedingly handsome gown of black and Mrs. Isaac Requa was also in black, the gown set off with an imported French bonnet. Miss Edith Rovey came across from San Francisco for the tea, and met many old friends.

Mrs. George Percy is entertaining her sister from the east, and they were both at the tea.

Miss Gertrude Allen made a charming picture in a costume of blue, with wide blue picture hat, and one of the stunning new opera coats of the season. Mrs. John Conner's new opera coat was also exceedingly handsome and very effective. Mrs. George Perkins, Jr., was simply stunning, in a white gown with striking trimmings of costly lace.

Miss Noelle De Golla wore her debutante gown of white, and she made a sweet picture, as she greeted many friends.

Mrs. George De Golla was in black, and so also was Mrs. L. J. Brownwell.

Mrs. Frank Watson's gown showed a cape au lait effect, and was trimmed in lace in an effective fashion.

Mrs. George Perkins had with her her sister, Miss Mabel Quatman, who looked very handsome in a French gown in green effects, with a wide picture hat.

One of the striking young girls in the room was Miss Elsie Kimble. She was all in black. Mrs. George Gross helped her sister to receive her guests in a cordial, happy way.

Other notable costumes were worn by Mrs. Rosenfeld, Mrs. Proctor, Mrs. Matthews, the Misses Emma and Nellie Gross, Mrs. Montel Taylor, Miss Clarissa Lohse, Mrs. Frederick Morse, Mrs. Egbert Stone, Mrs. Harry Thomas, Miss Marion Evers, Mrs. A. A. Moore, Miss Jacqueline Moore, Miss Sperry, Miss Burdge, Miss Smith, Mrs. Shelby Martin, Miss Grace Sanborn—but I can't go on writing a list which might really be "the blue book."

Mrs. Pease entertained "the receiving party" at cards the next evening. An equal number of men were invited, and the occasion was a happy, jolly affair.

SWELL INFORMAL TEA.

A swell and very informal tea has been planned for next Wednesday by Miss Ethel Valentine. The family has been in mourning, and Miss Valentine has been away, so it is many months since there has been any entertainment in their home. The old residence in East Oakland has been closed, and the family are living at present in the Derby residence at Linda Vista. Miss Ethel Valentine is entertaining for Miss Jacqueline Moore whose engagement to Jack Valentine was recently announced. The tea is to be very informal, and the receiving party will be made up of twelve intimate friends.

cently announced. The tea is to be very informal, and the receiving party will be made up of twelve intimate friends.

MRS. BARKER'S TEA.

Among the most interesting of the teas was that given by Mrs. T. L. Barker, in honor of Mrs. Lafayette de Fries, of London.

Mrs. E. H. Kittredge has returned to town and has as her guest her sister, Mrs. De Fries. The latter has been here before, and has old friends here, who are glad to welcome her. She is a notable guest, for she is one of the brilliant American women, well-known in London, and part of its exclusive set. She has been presented at court, has traveled far, and is a bright conversationalist and a very charming woman. Anyone might add, "so is her hostess of Wednesday."

Mrs. Barker invited for the most part only old friends of the guest of honor, and that makes a gathering so much more enjoyable. It is such a tax on one's patience to meet a lot of people you have never seen before, and perhaps never will see again.

Mrs. Barker's drawing room was exceedingly bright and pretty, in chrysanthemums, and lovely carnations. The dining room was in pink, with pink shaded candelabra, pink carnations, and the ices and bonbons following out the color scheme of pink.

Mrs. De Fries wore a handsome Parisian reception gown, and Mrs. Barker looked exceedingly well in gray.

Other handsome gowns were worn by Mrs. Edwin Goodall, Mrs. A. A. Moore, Mrs. George Wheaton, Mrs. F. M. Smith, Mrs. Yule, Mrs. Chabot, Mrs. Gorrill, Mrs. James Moffitt, Mrs. Goodfellow, Mrs. E. H. Kittredge, Mrs. McNear, Mrs. Gordon Stolp, Mrs. Sather, Mrs. Requa, Mrs. Gorrill.

The hours were from 3 to 5, and many of the guests went later to the "at home" given on the same day, by Mrs. Pease.

Mrs. R. W. Gorrill will entertain at luncheon for Mrs. de Fries at her home at Piedmont.

MRS. ROSENFELD'S SISTERS.

Mrs. Rosenfeld's sisters have come from the East to visit her, and are spending some time at the Lick House in San Francisco. An informal luncheon will be given for them by Mrs. Frank Watson, and Mrs. De Golla will entertain informally at cards.

I suppose all that special set who have been playing cards together will entertain for Mrs. Rosenfeld's relatives. Just between us, I should think they would get dreadfully tired of the sight of a card, and sigh for other social worlds, of far greater value.

SHE WAS A BRIGHT FRIENDLY WOMAN.

She was such a bright, friendly woman, and at luncheon the other day she was talking, and the rest of us paused to listen.

"I never minded cards very much till I watched my friend play the other day. How she did work for that prize! And there was such an envious, jealous gleam in her eyes when it went elsewhere. It was fairly primitive. And whatever else you are, never be a substitute—they call it 'sub' for short. The rest of the members will 'put on sub airs.' They will

It was a fascinating, slight, and, all San Francisco turned out in honor of the automobile parade.

I notice that Fred A. Jacobs and Mr. Courtney Ford have their racing "Franklin" entered in many of the races, and Mr. Ford is to drive the machine himself. I hope he will win.

Fred A. Jacobs is at the head of the National Automobile Company, the one that is leading the way on this coast. One hears that its "Toledo" touring car made the best record in the recent trout of endurance in the East.

It took foresight to see the big automobile development, and Mr. Fred Jacobs was one of the first to size up the big possibilities and take the lead. He is a thoroughly good business man, and none of his success has been the result of chance, but of good business perception. He goes at things in an enthusiastic fashion, and he is always successful.

He is a fine connoisseur on pictures, and the family home on Pacific avenue has an exceedingly good picture by Innes, "A Sunset Scene." The picture is exceedingly valuable, and its value will go on increasing in the future. Some of the most valuable rugs in the city were chosen by Mr. Jacobs, and adorn the family home.

The National Automobile Company are taking the greatest interest in the races at Ingleside, and their machines are almost in every race.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley A. Jacobs had a big Toledo in the automobile parade. They are very thoughtful of their Oakland friends, they have lived here so long—and their friends are hospitably entertained at their home, and there are always fascinating drives in the big automobile.

In the parade the other evening, Mrs. Fred McNear won the admiration of everyone, for the skillful way she manipulated her automobile. Miss Sarah Drum drives wells, and so does Miss Bertha Dolbeer.

George Whittell, Mr. Oscar Luning's nephew, has entered at Ingleside, his French racer, a Mars, and perhaps he will drive it himself. He is not a bit afraid, but speeds off like the wind. I think he has just as much nerve as the famous Barney Oldfield.

The Al Moores have been at the Vendome, making the trip on the new five thousand dollar locomobile. It is different from anything we see out here. It is painted yellow, and has a canopy, on the top of which is fastened all the baggage. You can travel a long way in comfort.

Mr. Moore has his regular chauffeur, who always travels with him. Mrs. Al Moore rarely wears a hat, even in the most trying kind of weather. For one thing, in rapid motoring, you can't keep a hat on—the pins are simply torn from your head. And if you take the ordinary leather cap, you simply look like a fright, flying through the country. From such a picture most women beg to be excused. Hence, the fad of no hat.

MRS. CHASE IS IN TOWN.

Mrs. Q. A. Chase and Miss Helen Chase returned to town this week. They have entertained house parties all through the summer at the family home, Freeport, on the coast of Maine.

SHE WILL BE A DEBUTANTE.

If she does not go East, Miss Elsie Kimble will be one of the debutantes of the season. "Mrs. Charles Purcell is to entertain for her younger sister, at her home on Vernon Heights, next Friday afternoon. The guests are to play 500, and a pleasant time is expected. Miss Elsie Kimble will be assisted in receiving by the Misses Noelle De Golla, Ada Kenna, Marietta Haven, Clarisse Lohse, Bessie Fillmore, Helen Chase, May Young, Margaret Sinclair, Florence Hush, Bessie Reed, Jane Rawlings, Emma Mahony, Elsie Bennet, Mrs. Will Watt, Mrs. Montel Taylor and Mrs. Henry Dutton of San Francisco. The latter is a very young society woman, well known in social circles across the bay.

On Saturday, Mrs. Parcells will also entertain at cards, the guests being invited from the younger set who have been playing cards so much this year. They have grown tired of euchre, and 500 seems to be the popular game of the hour.

MRS. MOON IN PASADENA.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Moon have taken a home on Euclid avenue, Pasadena, and will spend some months there. Miss Annie Miller was recently their guest in Southern California.

WILL GIVE A MUSICAL.

The following interesting invitation has been sent out this week: "You are very cordially invited to a musical at the residence of Mrs. G. Douglas Wise, No. 1350 Madison street, Oakland, Wednesday, November eleventh, 1903, for the benefit of St. Francis de Sales Church, Oakland, from three to six o'clock, and from seven-thirty to ten. Admission, twenty-five cents."

Mrs. Wise has one of the very handsome residences on Madison street, near Lake, admirably fitted for entertaining, and one is likely to meet at the musical many Lakeside people. Mrs. Wise has a large list of friends in San Francisco, and she expects most of them to be present, either in the afternoon or evening. One hears that the musical is to be a very fashionable affair.

MRS. GOODALL'S AT HOME.

Mrs. Edwin Goodall is to entertain informally on Tuesday, at her home on Jackson street.

MRS. BARRACLOUGH IN CHINA.

Mrs. BarracloUGH is now in China, having gone to the Orient with one of her Honolulu friends.

Miss May Perkins and her chaperon are also in China. They are very venturesome, for not satisfied with the seaport towns, they are traveling in the interior, and when last heard from they had reached the old walled town Tien-tsin.

MRS. DUNCAN COMING HOME.

Mrs. Robert Duncan and children expect to arrive here for the holidays, and will be at their home on Alice street.

Mrs. Duncan went abroad with Mrs. Mein, and she has spent the summer at Glasgow, where her relatives have a beautiful home.

The Howards have gone abroad, and will be away for a year. Mr. John L. Howard will join the family later.

MISS TOMPKINS WILL MARRY.

I have just been informed that the announcement has been made that Juliet Wilbur Tompkins will be married in New York on November 21.

We all know Miss Tompkins and the announcement of her engagement comes as a surprise to us. She has gained fame in the literary world.

DATE FIXED FOR THE WEDDING.

The wedding date of Miss Elsie Bennet and Mr. Shields has been set for November twenty-third. Miss Bennet has not yet decided whether it will be a church or home wedding, but in either case, only relatives will be present.

Miss Elsie Bennet is sure to be a very beautiful bride, and there will be many friends who will wish her happiness. The couple will spend their honeymoon at San Mateo, Dr. and Mrs. George Shields having loaned them their country home, Petit Trianon.

FABIOLA'S RUMMAGE SALE.

The annual rummage sale of the Fabiola is set for this coming week, and now is the time to dispose of anything you are tired of in the household. For somebody else is not tired of it—it will be new to them.

Old lamps for new! Old clothes for a song. Really it is very fascinating. One of these old clothes sales is the most picturesque thing in the world. You see human nature in its various phases. If one had to sell old clothes—be an "old clo' lady," one would mourn her lot, but just because you don't have to—then you're ready for the beautifully picturesque.

Mrs. Remi Chabot is always the cash-keeper at the rummage sale. As the box grows heavier, joy fills her heart, and there is a glad smile on her face, for "Fabiola" has been dear to her, for these many years.

The ladies will probably sell old clothes and old hats in the morning and later in the day go to the swell tea at the Davis home. At the rummage sale there will be Mrs. Yule, Mrs. Chabot, Mrs. Edward Walsh, Mrs. E. A. Heron, Mrs. Isaac Regua, Mrs. Q. A. Chase, Mrs. Standford, Mrs. R. W. Gorrill, Mrs. Allen Freeman, Mrs. A. D. Wilson, Mrs. George Dorning, Mrs. Edward Remillard, Mrs. Charles Egbert, Mrs. Oscar Luning, Mrs. H. E. Cooke, Mrs. S. T. Alexander.

And speaking of old lamps reminds me that it is the midnight oil that is burning. "Genius burns" also, but it is too much to ask that the process shall go on indefinitely. If Genius burns any longer, it will have to light up the Land of Happy Dreams!

THE MEDDLER.

MRS. LILLEY'S LUNCHEON.

Mrs. J. F. Lilley entertained at luncheon on Wednesday of this week, in honor of Mrs. Dr. H. L. Delmel. Covers were laid for twelve and the table was beautifully decorated, the color scheme being red. After an elaborate menu, which was played, The first prize, a beautifully jeweled pillow of white leather, the handwork of Mrs. Lilley, going to Mrs. Delmel. The second prize, a burnt wood panel, was won by Mrs. Halsey, the third by Mrs. Stan and the consolation by Miss Reale. The others present were: Miss A. Horton, Miss M. Kent, Miss E. Kittredge, Mrs. T. L. Barker, Mrs. Thomas Crellin, Mrs. Henry Clay Tait, Mrs. T. C. Coogan, Mrs. Minor Goodall, Mrs. Pedar Sather, Mrs. Q. A. Chase, Mrs. W. S. Goodfellow and Mrs. Paul Lohse.

CHORAL SECTION OF EBELL.

The choral section of the Ebell Club is doing splendid work under the able direction of Robert Lloyd, the well known baritone of San Francisco. Mr. Lloyd is contemplating changing his residence to Oakland.

S. P. CAR-FLOAT LAUNCHED.

HUGE FREIGHTER FLOATED ON THE BAY THIS FORE-NOON.

Car float Number Two was launched this morning shortly before noon. The big mass of iron and lumber slid into the water very gracefully and promises to be a worthy sister of float Number One. The latest addition to the Southern Pacific fleet of freight boats has been in course of construction for over six months.

Like the first barge, she is built to carry fourteen ordinary sized cars. She will be put into commission as soon as possible. Those who have had in hand the building of the barge announced last night positively that the launching would occur today and as a result a number of employees and outsiders gathered to witness the event.

CLOCK RESUMES REGULAR RUN AFTER OVERHAULING.

Not for many weeks has an event of such interest generally to the shop machinists, taken place as did yesterday, when the old familiar clock was brought back once more after three months' absence and hung in its accustomed place. This Howard veteran was taken from the shop last August after an honorable service of twenty-three years and was given into the hands of a jeweler for repairs. After much labor and a great deal of red tape, the time-piece and its way back to West Oakland, where the machinists are glad.

The history of this renowned clock is interesting. It was taken from the old Southern Pacific steam engine, and placed in the shop during the eighties. For a number of years it stood along with never an overhauled clock, and over three months ago it stopped. Smoking and oiling proved of no avail, so it was left to the watchmaker's art. It now occupies its old position above machinist Mackay's lathe.

TRAVELLING ENGINEERS MEET ACROSS THE BAY.

The Travelling Engineers of the Southern Pacific system are conducting a convention on a small scale in San Francisco, which according to reports, is being well attended. Matters of current interest are being heard and discussion on such topics is invited. Yesterday Foreman Stevenson of the travelling Engineers attended the meeting and addressed those present.

SLIGHT ALTERATIONS NECESSARY ON NEW MOTOR.

Although the transformer is installed and the motor is in actual running order, the boiler shop is not yet run by electricity. Everything looks and seems in first-class condition, but there is a lack of power, caused, presumably, by a misalignment in the belt. The motor runs very satisfactorily, attaining a speed of 300 revolutions a minute with no trouble, but either the belt which is too small in circumference or the belt is too narrow to make its use practicable at present. By Monday, however, the difficulty will probably be remedied and the boiler shop converted into an up-to-date electrically driven establishment.

NEWS NOTES FROM THE WEST OAKLAND SHOPS.

Charles Ball, engineer on the "Napier-Calgara" run, dropped into the shops yesterday.

Master Mechanic Michael O'Leary of Tracy called at the shops yesterday on business. O'Leary ordered the new bathes, two drill presses, several planes and an assortment of twist drills for his shop.

Jack Blain, who was injured a few days ago by a falling crossbar, is improving rapidly. Blain's left temple was badly cut as a result of the accident.

Engine 1268, which was recently rebuilt at Sacramento, will in the future be observed as an "official" car. That is, it will be used for conveying the heads of the different divisions from one point to another.

John Smith, who worked in the West

Oakland shops several years ago, but who now follows the turf for a living, has four thoroughbreds at the Emeryville track. The horses come direct from Louisiana, where they made good during the summer season.

Engine 1277 is in the shops for general repairs.

Quite a number of automobile enthusiasts from the shops attended the motor races in San Francisco today. Among those who composed the bunch were Foreman Bolden, George Allen, Charles Miller and E. J. Ludlow.

Frank Merrill will return to the band Monday after an absence of one week.

Engine 1410 is being repaired. This is the first repair work done on her since last fall.

Switchman Whitman made a flying leap yesterday afternoon from a derailed freight car that was highly applauded by all who witnessed the feat. A heavy train was about to ascend the trestle when one of the cars jumped the track just in front of the trip. Prospects of fire disaster appeared in Whitman's mind about that time, and he jumped from the top of the car, landing on the ground somewhat jolled, but unhurt.

FAKE PRIZE FIGHT STOPPED BY POLICE.

CHICAGO, November 7.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from Omaha, Neb., says: For participating in a palpable "fake" fight, "Philadelphia Tommy" Ryan and Billy Rhodes, of Omaha, were arrested as the gong changed for the end of the sixth round of their ten-round go last night. The audience was large, the fighters standing to clear $200 apiece. An unsuccessful effort was made to secure the release of Ryan and Rhodes on bail. They will be arraigned in police court on the charge of vagrancy.

UPWARD-TENDENCY IN STOCKS UPSET BY VIOLENT DECLINES.

NEW YORK, November 7.—The stock market made an upward start this week based upon the expectation of money market relief by the import of gold which was inaugurated on Monday. The market was upset later by the violent declines and heavy liquidation in United States steel securities directly due to the announced cut of $4 per ton in price of steel billets. A flood of rumors of the discouraging conditions in the trade and of friction in the corporation accompanied the stock market break in the securities. Heavy crop moving demands for currency from the West and South tightened the money market and restricted the supply available for employment in the stock market.

ROBBED RAILROAD BY FAKE PAYROLLS.

NEW YORK, November 7.—Canadian detectives, after a long chase have arrested Frank Frappier, in Brooklyn on a warrant charging him with the theft of $40 from the Canadian Pacific Railroad. The detective says that this charge is technical and alleges that the prisoner robbed the company of many thousands of dollars by means of "dummy" payrolls and a check system which he devised for paying employees at distant points on the line while he was employed as a section foreman. Frappier said he would fight extradition. He was traced by the detectives through his wife, who led the men a chase all over the New England States. Finally, by a most circuitous route, she oriented a boarding house in Brooklyn. At the door the husband met her. A few minutes later he was arrested. Besides being in the employ of the Canadian Pacific, Frappier owned a large hotel in Montreal and was considered to be quite wealthy. He was arrested three months ago, but fled. When his wife sold the hotel and prepared to leave she was followed. The detectives say they had great difficulty in keeping track of her movements but were only a few minutes behind at the end, after a chase of hundreds of miles and leading through a dozen large cities.

Stepped Against a Hot Stove.

A child of Mrs. George T. Benson, when getting his usual Saturday night bath, stepped back against a hot stove, which burned him severely. The child was in great agony and his mother could do nothing to pacify him. Remembering that she had a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in the house, she thought she would try it. In less than half an hour after applying it the child was quiet and asleep, and in less than two weeks was well. Mrs. Benson is a well-known resident of Kollar, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment and especially valuable for burns, cuts, bruises and sprains. For sale by Grocers, druggists, Seventh Street and Broadway.

Some Good Stories About the Recent Campaign.

The KNAVE

Clever Tricks Played by Politicians to Try and Win.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 7.—"Schmitz is it."

There's the phrase that has supplanted "Lane's the man."

It is a very significant phrase, and full of juicy meat. It means much to every one who knows anything about the situation in San Francisco.

If you will remember last week I predicted the election of Schmitz.

I also predicted the election of every office aside from the Supervisors. But that wasn't very hard to do, for any one with half an ear that took the trouble to walk around this city would have heard all about the certain election of Schmitz, Byington, Hynes, Baehr, Curtis, Godchaux and McDougald.

I confess I was a little scared about Dodge's fate, because of the bitterness of the fight against him and also because of the money which ex-Judge Bahrs was spending.

Then again, Dodge didn't have the Labor Union endorsement, but he managed to pull through with a tremendous vote, and I, and every one who has the good of San Francisco at heart am glad of it.

I knew that Henry Lynch would make as good a fight as possible under the circumstances, and he did. He, too, was handicapped by the loss of the Labor Union endorsement. That endorsement really meant a guarantee of about 12,000 votes, aside from the party strength.

But now it's all over and any one can say, "I told you so."

Schmitz has jobs to burn, and he isn't going to do a thing but burn them in a manner most acceptable to himself. He is against all the people who were not for him in the campaign and those who helped make his fight will be led to the public trough and well fed. He has announced his intention to clean out the Board of Health, the Board of Public Works, and there is some talk of his contemplating sensational changes in the Police Department. With three Commissioners he can do just about as he pleases with the cops.

I am told Adolph Spreckels may not succeed himself as Park Commissioner. It was generally understood that he was for Schmitz, while his brother John D. and the Call were against the Mayor. But Abe Ruef tells me that he can't find where Adolph Spreckels was very materially for Schmitz. He certainly contributed nothing to the campaign fund, and so far as Ruef is concerned, money speaks louder than words.

They are now saying that Mr. Crocker's defeat was due to too many managers.

I have no doubt there was considerable jealousy in the camp and, while nothing may have been done intentionally that would hurt the chances of Henry J's success, I have about made up my mind that bad management was the chief draw-back of the Republican campaign.

Lane's downfall was really sensational.

He didn't get any more votes than Tobin. Incidentally, I may mention that the entire Tobin push voted against Lane. That big Democratic meeting at the Pavilion on Monday night caused terror to very emphatically develop in the hearts of the Republican managers. It certainly was the biggest political demonstration ever held in this city, and the way they cheered and whooped things up made it appear that there was a good chance for Lane to be the man.

There were more people at the meeting than Lane's total vote. So that's proof positive that the cheering wasn't on the level, and now I am told that the tremendous crowd was partly due to the skillful manipulation of Mr. Abraham Ruef, who, so the story goes, ordered his lieutenants to have as many of their henchmen as possible at the Mechanics' Pavilion to cheer for Lane. His object was to weaken Crocker, and I guess he succeeded in a measure.

The election showed the actual Labor Union vote to be about 17,000. Of course a number of the working people who follow the leadership of P. H. McCarthy undoubtedly voted for Crocker, and some who are with Michael Casey voted for Lane. But I think about 17,000 voters marked their ballots for Schmitz. The gambling element, the saloon element, and the Republican element controlled by Abe Ruef gave the Mayor the other 9,000 votes.

The candidates of the regular parties, endorsed by the Labor Unionists, polled the top notch votes. McDougald, the Republican candidate for City Treasurer, with the Labor Union backing, broke the record. Next to him came Byington, the Democratic candidate for District Attorney. Then came Judge Cabaniss, the Democratic candidate for Police Judge, with the Labor Union assistance. Fourth ran Washington Dodge, who polled more votes than any individual candidate with a single nomination.

Byington carried every Assembly Precinct in San Francisco. Franklin K. Lane lost every Assembly Precinct in San Francisco save one.

The election of Finn, the Labor

Union candidate for Supervisor, was a surprise. He has served a term in the Legislature. During his stay in Sacramento he accomplished nothing that could entitle him to further consideration at the hands of the tax payers. It was the saloon keepers' endorsement that gave him the victory.

The Examiner won most of its battles. It elected Dr. Dodge, Curtis, Hynes, Godchaux, Leland, and a number of the Supervisors. It defeated Henry Lynch for Sheriff, Algetinger and Barton for Supervisors, Lutz for Public Administrator, Bahrs for Assessor, and Jacobs for Recorder.

I think the Bulletin's fight against Schmitz was very ill advised. It was too strong and ill tempered to have any real effect. It accused Schmitz of making very bad appointments and cited the cases of Mershon on the Board of Civil Service Commissioners and Parry on the Board of Fire Commissioners, both of whom succeeded in creating a scandal.

Of course Schmitz's answer to these charges was that he had dismissed Mr. Mershon when he found him to be otherwise than straight and had made an effort to punish him with the aid of the courts. But the courts decided that he could not be punished.

In the Parry case the Grand Jury, after a thorough investigation of the charges, decided that he had done nothing contrary to the law.

Then the Bulletin laid a little too much stress on the Ruef end.

Now, while it may be very reprehensible to be under the thumb of Mr. Abraham Ruef, that side of the Mayor's career might have been handled much more effectively for political purposes had a little judgment been used. The open attacks on Ruef imply resulted in the circulation of a story to the effect that Ruef was being attacked by the Bulletin because of his religious affiliations and, in consequence, a great many Jews, who are normally Democrats or Republicans, voted for Schmitz.

Schmitz had the best kind of a cut and dried campaign speech. While addressing his followers he would say: "The newspapers don't mention my name and they don't print my pictures; but on Wednesday morning they will print my name and my picture on their first pages."

He wound up his addresses with: "I don't care to have my name all over the newspapers, I simply want to inscribe my name across the hearts of the common people."

I guess that's bad bunk.

I see that Governor Pardee has thrown the last remnants of the Dan Burns push out of office.

When Eddie Conroy lost his job as secretary of the Board of Pilot Commissioners, the one man that Colonel Burns wanted to gather his living from the public trough was discharged from the army of tax eaters.

Conroy is a very queer character. For years he has acted as Colonel Burns' messenger. I think he made as much trouble for the Colonel as anything else, but Burns liked him and always saw that he was "placed." In addition to the money he has received from the people for political performances in the interest of Burns, Conroy has always held a position in some book or other at the race track.

I shall never forget the time that Sam Rainey decided to have Conroy dismissed from his job as a sheet writer in the field book on the race course at Emeryville. In order to do that Rainey had to secure control of the field book from George Rose. After he came into full possession of the gold mine Rainey discovered that Conroy had a contract with the racing association which insured him perpetual employment in the field book. So, notwithstanding the fact that Sam Rainey owned the book, he was powerless to dismiss Conroy.

It was Eddie Conroy who circulated the report this year that Charles Webb Howard passed the hat among the corporations for the purpose of collecting a campaign fund to elect a boodle Board of Supervisors. Conroy claimed to have evidence that would implicate Howard to a certainty. He did everything possible to get the story printed in the newspapers, but as he had nothing like definite evidence to prove his assertions, the story never got into cold type.

Conroy and all his crowd were out for Lane.

Hugh Burke, political editor of the Call, succeeds Conroy as Secretary of the Pilot Commissioners. Burke is a very capable man and enjoys the esteem and good will of his journalistic colleagues. He helped found the Bohemian Club. Of late years he has done much confidential political work for John D. Spreckels. I feel confident he will make a very desirable clerk for the Commissioners. The duties of this office are of such a nature that they will in no way interfere with Mr. Burke's newspaper business.

Well, at last poor old Martin Kelly is clean out of it politically. He was shouting for Lane for two weeks before the election, but his shouting didn't do any good. He didn't succeed in making a decent dent in the returns from the district south of Market street, where he was once a genuine strength. The managers of the Crocker forces claimed that Martin was simply shouting for Lane in hopes that he might break into their camp at the last moment. They decided it was better to let Martin wind himself up this time for good.

It isn't known to many people that Martin Kelly is a very entertaining man. Before he broke into politics he was one of the most competent machinists that ever patted the pave at this end of God's universe. His specialty was tool making and I understand he could turn out tools that are not always used for legitimate purposes that have never been equalled.

Aside from his ability to make things in steel Martin Kelly is quite a vocalist. He plays the violin and can talk constitutional law with any of the leading lights that decorate and impede the progress of our courts.

Once the Examiner accused Martin of stealing a fire engine, there was a mistake somewhere, a technical mistake, I believe, and Martin sued for libel. He was given a verdict of a dollar. Since then he has been known as Martin Dollar Kelly.

The last event of note in which Martin figured, aside from politics, was the Fair will case. Although Martin never took the stand in that controversy for millions, it is understood he had evidence that would have very materially helped Mrs. Craven to get some of the old Senator's coin.

YOUNG MAN STABBED TO DEATH
BY ANOTHER IN QUARREL.

OGDEN, Utah, November 7.—John Coffin, aged 25, was stabbed and instantly killed last night at Huntsville, fifteen miles east of this city, by Chris Peterson, a young man of the same age. Two weeks ago Coffin was arrested on a charge of embezzlement by Sylvester Crow, father-in-law of Peterson. At the trial Coffin was discharged, as the accusation was found to be baseless. There has been ill-feeling since, ending in a quarrel and fight last night, during which Peterson seized a knife and stabbed Coffin. Peterson was arrested and brought to the County Jail at Ogden this morning.

VEDIC MARRIAGE.

Courageous East Indian Publicly Gave Away Hand of Orphan Girl.

A unique marriage, unknown in the annals of Sibi, Baluchistan, was celebrated in the premises of the local Girls' School on the 26th inst. at 7 o'clock in the evening. It was fully attended by the cream of the Sibi town, most of the government officials, and also by a few ladies. The bridegroom, Lala Sobha Ram, a postman of the Sibi Postoffice, was married to a girl 12 years old, brought down from the Vaish Orphanage at Meerut. The ceremony was performed strictly in accordance with the Vedic rites, which was generally appreciated on account of it being the simplest and least expensive. Pandit Nand Lal, second master of the local Barnes School, and a good Sanskrit scholar, assisted by Pandit Devi Chand, of the postoffice, Sibi, officiated as minister on the occasion. He discharged the duty to the entire satisfaction of all present.

Lala Ram-Rakha Mal, the Postmaster, Sibi, acted as kofidhar of the bride, and Lala Mitha Ram, the Treasurer, as that of the bridegroom. Both the gentlemen shared no pains to make the function quite a success. Lala Ram Rakha Mal deserves the highest credit and the best thanks of the Sibi people for the great moral courage shown by him in his publicity and willingly offering to give away, as required by the Hindu Shastras, the hand of an orphan girl, which no man could in a similar case ever do but with great reluctance and much hesitation. The thanks of the Sibi people are also due to Lala Dida Ram, Munshi Seth Gela Ram, Tahsildar, Dr. Purotaram Das, Assistant Surgeon, and Lala Kanhiya Lal, Head Clerk E. A. ### THE COMPLETE HOUSEKEEPER.

You've read about those capable women who can get up a four course dinner for ten people at half an hour's notice when there's nothing in the house but a few cold boiled potatoes and three slices of graham bread."

"Pleasant for you," said the bachelor to whom he was talking, with great heartiness and a vision of invitations to dine.

"Well, I guess it is," said Mr. Jenkins. "She's full of resources, that woman is, sir! Why, a few nights ago I took home two business friends to dinner unexpectedly, and it proved there wasn't a particle of bread in the house, and not a bit of flour. We had expected to go away for over Sunday, and the flour barrel was just empty. Well, sir, some women would have said, 'You can get along without bread,' but not my wife."

"She didn't?" said the bachelor, still more warmly. "Well, how did she manage?"

"She slipped out the back door and over to the bakery and bought a dozen rolls," said Mr. Jenkins, carelessly, "just as she'd done a great many times before."

A DYING VETERAN.

(In an attic in a Chicago tenement house, John Mason, a Civil War veteran, aged 74, was heard singing, about midnight, "Marching Through Georgia." The song awakened everyone in the house. When Mason's room was entered a few moments later, his eyes were wide open, but the old veteran was dead.—News Item.)

What to him were the words he sang Of Sherman's bold campaign, As up in attic chamber rang That stirring war refrain? What but the deeds of days gone by When in the ranks he stood Beneath the flag that fluttered high On fields steeped red with blood.

Again hoarse shouts rang over all, He heard the rolling drum Blend with the piercing bugle call That bade the soldier "Come!" Again the scream of shrieking file Came to his dying ears; Again from out the battle's strife He heard his comrades' cheers.

Once more he saw that stirring sight— Long lines of charging men— While over all there rippled bright, The fading ranks of Gray. And then he heard the battle's roar, He saw his old brigade Form up in battle line once more To face the cannonade.

He heard the shrieks of dying men. The thunder of the guns, And faintly to his ears again, Came grooves of Freedom's sons; He saw the bivouac fires there, White, clear and sharp and strong, There blended on the evening air, The peaceful notes of song.

"Hurrah!" "Hurrah!" the song rang out, "We bring the jubilee!" The dying veteran's stirring shout, Proclaimed glad victory; He saw the lines of passing Blue, The fading ranks of Gray, Join hands once more in grand review Before the Gates of Day.

LETTER

How Henry Crocker Went Down to Defeat at the Election

Lane's Bad Showing---Schmitz Success at the Polls

(Special to the Tribune.)

SAN FRANCISCO, November 7.—Henry Crocker was on Tuesday night justly entitled to the use of Napoleon's historic remark as he left the field of Waterloo, "All is lost but honor." Although he went down to defeat he did so with colors flying on one of the cleanest and most honorable campaigns ever conducted in the city of San Francisco.

His political opponents threw mud at him but he used none in return. When he was told where blocks of purchasable votes could be secured he refused to participate in the traffic. When political moves were suggested to him where he could obtain strength, though at the probable expense of friends and interests he represented, he declined to even consider the propositions. In short he made a campaign that though it brought defeat, secured for him what he valued still more—the staunch admiration of those who fought with him and the respect of his opponents.

The defeat of Henry Crocker for Mayor has not brought about his political funeral by any means; on the contrary it has strengthened him in every way not only in San Francisco but throughout the State, for there is general appreciation of the manly, clean-handed battle he made. And let it be put down right here as a long distance prophecy that two years hence the Republicans will be urging him to accept the nomination again by reason of the fact that he will be the strongest man to head the ticket.

A CLOSING STAMPEDE.

It was a peculiar finish to so closely-contested a campaign. Four days before election, Crocker and Schmitz were hip and took, it being almost an impossibility to tell which one was ahead; Schmitz was so certain a win-changed with gattling guns.

It stands to reason that some very radical moves must have been made to turn the tide so completely in so short a time and those who were in a position to know what was going on had no difficulty in locating them. The first and prime reason for the slump was the hurricane finish started by Ruef as related in this correspondence last week, he had arranged his plans so as to centralize everything in his efforts of the closing days and when he began to turn loose it had not taken the politicians long to see that he was making rapid headway. The result of this was that those who had wagered large sums on Crocker decided that they had better do some "hedging" and their doing so created a stampede in the betting market.

The news that some of the big bettors and prominent politicians who had placed large sums on Crocker were betting on Schmitz spread like wild fire and started all sorts of rumors. Creditulous ears listened to the yarns of how "Crocker had been thrown overboard" and the like and the outcome was that everyone wished to bet on Schmitz with the result that the story spread around town that Crocker was surely beaten, the proof offered being that the Republican nominee's friends were betting on Schmitz.

LANE'S BAD SHOWING.

As for Lane he finished third, as for weeks had been predicted would be the case. A singular feature of his defeat was that with the solitary exception of Hinton, who thought so little of his chances that he did not put out an election card, Lane received the smallest vote on the ticket and at that was only 470 ahead of Hinton. As a matter of fact there were more people present at his mass meeting in the Mechanics' Pavilion Monday night than voted for him and as he got less votes than were given to Tobin two years ago he must have been deserted very generally by his party at the eleventh hour.

It is useless to claim therefore that Lane beat Crocker staying in the fight, for had John Doe been placed at the head of the Democratic ticket about as many party votes would have been polled for him as went for Lane. The utter routing of the Democratic nominee and the complete reversal of public opinion in his case furnishes one of the most startling illustrations ever presented of the whims and uncertainties of politics, for it is only one year ago since Lane was given 33,000 votes in San Francisco and defeated the Republican nominee for Governor by 10,000 while last Tuesday only 12,578 ballots were cast for him and he finished a bad third in the local race.

SCHMITZ' SUCCESS.

Schmitz' victory therefore cannot be deprived of any of its laurels by the argument that Lane's supporters beat Crocker and he is justly entitled to every credit that went with it. His campaign was ably mapped out and splendidly managed and Abe Ruef well deserves the congratulations that are being showered upon him.

Schmitz' position before the public was a strong one. He used as one of his principal arguments, the thunder launched at him by his opponents when he won two years ago. At that time they predicted all kinds of dire calamities for the city, because it was to be represented by a labor Mayor, and foretold that under his administration there would be a depression of business and a falling off of values. After quoting this, Schmitz was able to show that exactly the contrary had proved the case. Facts and figures conclusively indicated that San Francisco had never enjoyed two more prosperous years than those of his administration, and no one could dispute the statement that not only had property values almost doubled, but more office buildings, residences and improvements had been launched during his official career than in any other two years in the city's history.

In addition to this unquestionably strong showing from a business standpoint, Schmitz had with him the local political machine and all the advantages that go with a class organization. As the representative of labor, he entered the field with 17,000 or 18,000 votes to his credit, and as he had so many other channels of strength to tap in addition, it is not surprising that he rolled up the record-breaking vote accorded him.

EFFECT ON POLITICS.

And now as to the future. That Schmitz' victory makes labor the leading political factor in San Francisco, goes without saying. It is more far-reaching than that, though. Capital made an issue here of the municipal campaign and the whole State was watching the result. The triumph of Schmitz here, therefore, will have a tendency to strengthen the labor movement throughout the entire coast, and that that party will have a State ticket in the field three years hence now seems certain.

There are many who are inclined to pooh-pooh labor as a State issue, but despite what they say, the subject is entitled to serious consideration. Last year the unions, being without a State ticket, tagged on to the Democratic nominee and nearly elected him; three years hence there may be an open fusion between the Democratic and labor parties, with the nominee for Governor making his principal appeal to the people as the representative of unionism.

It is well, therefore, to look at the way things are drifting. At the two municipal elections held in California last week, the candidates of the labor party were both elected—Schmitz in San Francisco and Hasset in Sacramento. Last year Nevada county, always considered safe for 600 Republican majority, returned to the Assembly a Democrat, backed by the unions, and throughout the entire northern part of the State the unions cut a big figure, cutting down Republican majorities in a surprising manner in counties that had for years been considered absolutely safe, and are now doubtful.

Every one knows that Pardee was only saved for Governor by the phenomenal Republican vote cast for him south of Tehachapi, and that section is now regarded as the safeguard of the party in California. Those who ridicule the proposition that the labor unions can obtain any State prominence politically, point to the fact that the wage-earners have lost every strike in Los Angeles and have been downed in every effort they have made to assert themselves there.

True enough, but there is a new factor to be considered. Notices have been sent out throughout Southern California stating that the Los Angeles Examiner will make its bow to the public early in December.

Everyone should realize what that means. The Los Angeles Examiner is going to be published on exactly the same lines as Hearst's other papers in San Francisco, Chicago and New York, and will be the champion of labor. Instead of having public opinion moulded against them by a united press, the wage-earners will, in the Examiner, have a force in the field that is bound to assert itself. When Hearst gets into a fight, his ammunition of money and brainy managers, as well as in the past, always brought results and he certainly sees opportunities for success in Los Angeles or else he would not have invaded the field.

Suppose, therefore—and the hypothesis is well warranted—that Hearst succeeds in building up the labor unions in Southern California, it is not a very wild flight of imagination to figure out how three years from now California may have a labor Governor. Or, course, if the Democrats united with the Republicans against this new grant, they could easily defeat it, but they are not likely to do so. Instead of such a coalition, the most probable programme is that the Democrats being so sadly in the minority as a State party, will endeavor to make a combination with the Unionists and get behind a mixed ticket. The Republicans will certainly not enter into any alliance of the kind, and as the labor leaders will be seeking strength, it is more likely than probable that they will join hands with the Democrats and make their fight upon that basis.

LEGISLATURE AND CONGRESS.

That the labor party will be heard from in the next Legislature seems reasonably certain for, with the grip upon the city now held by Schmitz, it will be comparatively easy to send to Sacramento at least one more State Senator to work with Bunkers, the hold-over representative in the upper house, and also about half a dozen Assemblymen. The movement is not sufficiently organized upon State lines to permit many combinations in the interior districts, but San Francisco alone can send enough members to create a good deal of trouble at the capital. Those who witnessed or participated in the bitter conflict that took place at the last session over the employer's liability bill can properly realize this condition of affairs and how serious the growth of labor strength is as regards legislative work.

Another important proposition is as to the conditions now presented in the Fourth Congressional District. With the unions not properly moulded politically, the workingmen succeeded last year in ousting Congressman Kahn and sending E. J. Livermash to Washington in his place. Kahn wants the nomination again next year and will probably get it, though as to the outcome at the polls there are new grave apprehensions on the part of the Republicans. Looking the situation squarely in the face, it must be admitted that the candidate of the labor party and Democrats combined has far better prospects next year than Kahn or whoever the Republicans may nominate.

The Fifth District should be safe enough for the Republicans, but it is by no means a sure thing. Congressman Wynn is distinctly a labor representative and as well as in the San Francisco end of the district, he certainly has a good fighting chance to go back to Washington. Much will depend upon the personality of the individual who gets the Republican nomination in the district.

There has been a little talk around town that Schmitz will be a candidate for Congress, but on the face of things the rumor can be dismissed forthwith. Schmitz' fight for re-election and Ruef's great efforts in his behalf were all with the object of securing control in the city and county. Having accomplished this, there is little likelihood that Schmitz would now sacrifice to the empty honor of going to Congress and an empty honor it would be, for as a labor representative, he would have no political standing there.

WANTS TO BE GOVERNOR.

What Schmitz is undoubtedly aiming at is the Governor's chair, and a story is around town of how he told a personal friend that that is the ambition of his life. If such be the case his plans will soon become apparent, for in order to have any chance of success, he will require a State organization and moves will be made with that object in view. If his desires trend that way, he is a more dangerous factor than some people think. Hearst will undoubtedly back him, for that there is an understanding between them on the labor issue is shown by the Mayor's trip to New York last year in the interests of Hearst's Congressional candidacy. With the aid of the Examiner of Los Angeles and San Francisco and the support of the machine, Hearst intends to build up in this State in support of his Presidential ambitions, Schmitz three years hence may therefore be a strong figure in State politics.

But the Presidential campaign is next year and Hearst's efforts will have died out by the time the gubernatorial contest comes around, may be said. Did it never occur to you that Hearst does not seriously hope to get the Presidential nomination next year? Instead, he may be merely getting into line for it, and creating and building up a machine that five years from now will make him invincible for the nomination, at least. He is young enough to wait and can afford to take the chances of trying to formulate conditions that will bring about the opportunity he seeks to step from the structure of the Fourth Estate to the executive chair in the White House.

SAM PARKS MAKES STATEMENT.

TALKS TO REPORTERS BEFORE GOING TO SING SING PRISON.

NEW YORK, November 7.—Before he left his cell here to begin serving his sentence of more than two years in Sing Sing prison for extortion of money from employers, Samuel Parks, ex-walking delegate of the local House-smiths and Bridgemen's Union, called about him a number of newspaper men to bid them farewell. In so doing he made the following statement:

"It's only taken a little more than seven years for them to get me here. It has been a hard fight and I've lost; that's all. I'm down and out and I know when I've got enough. I'll be forgotten in less than a year except by some of the boys who thought there was some good in me and I am sorry for it. Every laboring man in this country should remember me for years to come. I should be a warning to them. I'm the victim of a sustom that is older than I am, and that is the habit of having money transactions with employers. That put me here."

"The salvation of the unions lies in stopping that practice at once. They must give up fines, waiting time, back pay for strikes and everything like that. That's the loophole through which this grafting as they call it, creeps in. The employers never leave any tracks. I could name 100 employers here who have made practice of using labor unions against competitors. I know plenty of employers who have made fortunes by the use of money of a young fellow who has never made more than a couple of dollars of day and has been in authority by his union."

FUNERAL OF BISHOP BRONDEL.

HELENA, Mont., November 7.—Shortly before noon yesterday the remains of Right Rev. John B. Brondel, late bishop of the diocese of Helena, was laid to rest in a vault beneath the cathedral of the Sacred Heart. The last sad service over the remains of the late bishop were attended by the largest crowd which ever assembled at a Helena funeral. The cathedral would scarcely hold half of those assembled to pay the last tribute to the departed bishop and the top of Catholic Hill, surrounding the cathedral, was black with humanity.

Archbishop Alexander Christie of Portland said Pontifical requiem high mass, while Bishop Edward P. O'Dea of Seattle preached the funeral service. The active pall-bearers who officiated were: Rev. Father Crimmet, S. J., president of the Gonzales College at Spokane; the Rev. Father Victor Day of Helena; the Rev. Father A. R. Coonan of Anaconda; the Rev. Father Kauten of Seattle; the Rev. Father Fudenn of Dillon, Mont.; the Rev. Father Phelan of Deer Lodge, Mont.; and the Rev. Father Stack of Red Lodge, Mont.

DOWIE SUEED FOR BOARD.

NEW YORK, November 7.—John Alexander Dowie, who is to depart for Zion City, Monday has been served with papers in a suit by the keeper of a Lexington-avenue boarding house for $150 unpaid board, alleged to have been contracted for by Deacon Corlette, acting as agent for the restoration host. Dowie's legal representative declares no such contract was entered into for the members of the "host."

SHOULD REGISTER TRADE MARKS.

MANY INFRINGEMENTS OF WELL KNOWN AMERICAN PATENTS IN JAPAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 7.—Manufacturers who have not yet registered their trade marks in Japan are threatened by a most serious state of affairs, owing to the action of certain parties there, who have been registering lately a number of the most famous American trade marks. This has resulted in a practical standstill on the business in articles covered by such registrations, as the trade has been warned that any one will be prosecuted for selling goods under these trade marks, except when purchased through them.

Owing to the severity of the Japanese law respecting trade mark infringements, the dealers throughout that country are in a very much disturbed condition as to their status in the matter; those having stock on hand are afraid to sell and those without goods on hand naturally refuse or fear to buy while such a serious question is pending.

This appears to be nothing less than blackmail, and it is very important for the protection of American manufacturers that they should be informed as to the best way to register their trade marks in Japan in their own names. This costs about $30.00, and the registration requires a resident agent who only represents the manufacturer before the Japanese office, and need not necessarily handle the goods. In fact, it is desirable that the commercial interests and the matter of trade mark representation be kept separate.

The Japanese are great imitators, and it is very important that manufacturers should properly protect their trade marks without further delay, for this is considered by the best informed as but an entering wedge in what may prove to be a matter of great moment. The question is so serious, that there is no question of the necessity for immediate and energetic action on the part of all manufacturers interested in the Japanese trade.

TO DISBAR A PROMINENT LAWYER.

NEW YORK, November 7.—A petition has been laid before the Appellate division of the Supreme Court by the Bar Association, accusing Attorney George Alfred Lamb, of this city, who represented Peter Power in the suit to prevent the merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railroads of fraud, deceit, malpractice and gross unprofessional conduct. Proceedings were begun to disbar him. The Northern Pacific railroad brought the charges originally before the Bar association last January.

The accusations against Lamb that he had used Peter Power as a dummy plaintiff in the Northern Railroad

When the charges were originally made Lewis refused to answer them, denying that he was guilty of any wrong and saying that if the dignity of the Federal court had been offended as charged that court alone could take official notice of the matter.

RANK IMPOSTOR IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, November 7.—Convinced that an impostor used their name to gain the hand of Miss Eleanor Anderson, a telegraph operator in an up-town office, the family of Robert Goelst has employed detectives to find the man, with instructions to leave no stone unturned to clear up the mystery which a day or two ago took the form of an announcement that the young millionaire was about to wed Miss Anderson. The latter story was quickly denied but the Anderson family insisted that a man representing himself as Robert Goelst had presented to their daughter letters of introduction and that he also used cards bearing their name. It has been learned that the letters, which were still in possession of the Andersons, were forgeries. The impostor went so far as to show Miss Anderson her future home on Fifth avenue and all preparations had been made for the wedding when the story got into the newspapers and thus reached the man who was supposed to be taking the leading part in the romance. Thus far no trace of the man's true identity has been secured.

SETTLEMENT IN SIGHT.

RUMOR THAT HEINZ COPPER WAR IS ABOUT OVER.

PORTLAND, Or., November 7.—The Oregonian prints the following special from Butte, Mont.:

A report late tonight, apparently based upon the very best authority, indicates that the settlement of the long and bitter copper war between F. Augustus Heinz and the Amalgamated Copper Company is in sight and resumption of the latter's miners and smelters is not far distant.

According to information tonight Heinz has sold out his entire Butte holdings with the exception of a small interest, and he will act as the Amalgamated Copper Company's manager of all its miners and smelters. The price paid by the Amalgamated or the price it is to pay could not be ascertained.

President William Scallion of the Amalgamated refuses either to affirm or deny the report. He declared that such was possible, though if the settlement had been effected with Heinz by the Amalgamated officials in New York he was not aware of it.

Upon the most reliable statements made by the Amalgamated people it is understood that Governor Toole will call an extra session of the Legislature within the next week, that a fair trial bill of the Amalgamated Copper Company may be enacted.

NEWS FROM BERKELEY AND THE STATE UNIVERSITY

DIET OF FRUIT AND NUTS HOT SHOT FROM MAKE SEARCH FOR LARGE TRANSFER MAY MAKE TREE PLANTING IS SUSTAINING. EDITOR. BARBER. OF REALTY. COMPULSORY.

Professor M. E. Jaffa Announces the Remarkable Experiments at the University.

BERKELEY, November 7.—M. E. Jaffa, Assistant Professor of Agriculture at the University of California, has been carrying on, in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture, a series of investigations relative to the food values of fruit and nuts. Before reaching his conclusions, Professor Jaffa made 21 digestion experiments and nine dietary tests. A portion of the investigations were made with persons who had lived for a number of years on a strictly nut and fruit diet while others were conducted with college students who had been accustomed to eating the ordinary fare. In nearly all of the dietary studies and in all but one of the digestion experiments, fruit and nuts constituted a diet.

In one series of daily rations apples and bananas formed the main, either alone or in combination with walnuts, almonds, peaches or Brazil nuts. Other experiments involved a combination of grapes, pears, figs, walnuts and other fruits and nuts eaten with small quantities of milk and cereal foods.

While some of the dietaries brought forth the fact that it is possible to obtain the needed protein and energy from a fruitarian diet, the majority of those studies fell below the standard. Professor Jaffa does not ascribe this entirely to the form of diet as larger quantities of nutrients might have been consumed on an ordinary mixed diet. The nutritive qualities were clearly shown in the case of a student who gradually changed from an ordinary mixed fare to one of nuts and fruits without an apparent loss of health or strength. During the eight days of the experiment he was able to carry on his usual college duties and during a portion of the time performed heavy physical work on an exclusive fruitarian diet without any appreciable loss of weight.

It was found that the cost of the fruitarian diet per person varied from 18 to 46 cents per day, values comparing favorably with those found for an ordinary mixed diet.

The question of the wholesomeness of a long continued diet of fruits and nuts is not taken up in the investigations carried on by the University of California. The agreement of one food or another with any person is a matter of personal temperament, although to Professor Jaffa it seems fair to declare that those with whom nuts and fruits agree can, if the energy to obtain a considerable nutriment from such sources.

STUDENT PAPER ROASTS STUDENTS WHO BET AGAINST THEIR OWN TEAM.

BERKELEY, November 7.—Students who make it a practice to bet against their own football team, because of their lack of confidence in the home eleven, are severely grilled by Editor Arthur L. Price, in this week's issue of the Occident, the University of California weekly. It has developed during the last few days that a few of the students are taking the Stanford end in their wagers. It is for these that the following roast has been written by the student editor.

"There is always considerable betting on one's football team and there has been betting against one's football team. Those fellows who do the latter have glib excuses to offer in justification of their lack of confidence, but excuses don't go. There is no place in Heaven for the man who bets against his variety.

"Of course the team looks awfully raw out in the field in the early season, when the fellows fumble and tackle high and infrequently, and grow absent minded about their interference; and the coterie in dirty jerseys form a tough looking lot of irresponsibles. But we seem to forget that at Stanford there is just such a motley crew and at Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Pennsylvania affairs are not much better, only we don't see conditions there.

"But if the team doesn't look worth your money arrange to spend it at some delectable resort—don't bet on the opposition and throw away not only your money, but also your pride, patriotism, and honest decency.

"But if any other fellow is off-side enough to want to bet against his college this will be an excellent time for him to do it—and get a fine expensive lesson seared into his unholly heart."

A sack of flour and a barrel of potatoes will convert a poor family quicker than a carload of gospel tracts.

JOHN J. ENOS DROPS OUT LEAVING A NUMBER OF ANXIOUS CREDITORS.

BERKELEY, November 7.—Following the disappearance from Dwight Way of John J. Enos, a well-known barber, has come an attachment on the shop formerly conducted by him at 2511 Dwight Way. The tenuous parlors were placed under lock and key by Deputy Marshal Howard and assigned to the custody of a constable. Among those who claim against Enos are T. L. Simpson, $200, G. H. Thompson $10 and John Elersch $10.

A bill of sale held by L. M. Williamson against Enos has been placed on record.

WOULD EXTEND MANUAL TRAINING.

BERKELEY, November 7.—The suggestion was made by A. L. Ott, a prominent resident of Berkeley at the regular meeting of the North End Improvement Club that the plans for the establishment of manual training and domestic industries in the schools be broadened to take in the entire county.

Victor Robertson, the president of the club stated that the General Civic Committee on Manual Training of which he is chairman, had asked the Town Trustees to set aside $15,000 of the proposed bond issue for the installation of manual training in the grammar schools of the city.

W. C. MASON AND L. M. WILLIAMSON PURCHASE A BLOCK WITH A HISTORY.

BERKELEY, November 7.—Another large realty transfer has been made in this city. The Buckley heirs having disposed of the business block at the southwest corner of Shattuck and University avenues to W. C. Mason and L. M. Williamson, the consideration was about $25,000.

An interesting history is attached to the structure which is one of the oldest buildings in the city. It was erected nearly a quarter of a century ago by T. M. Antisell, at one time a large piano manufacturer of San Francisco. The land occupied by the building was at one time a portion of a Spanish grant owned by General Sherman.

The block will be extensively improved by the new owners, who have disposed of the block they owned at the southeast corner of Shattuck avenue and Dwight Way.

DIMMICK SAYS HE IS PAUPER.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 7.—Walter N. Dimmick, the defaulting Mint cashier, now in San Quentin, has taken the pauper's oath in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. He did this that his case might be heard by the United States Supreme Court. He has already served his sentence, and that he should be freed on a writ of habeas corpus, as he is clearly entitled to his freedom. Nearly every court of record in the State has held that his contention was not sound and has denied the writ. Now Attorney Collins wants to take the matter to the highest court in the land. He wishes to petition the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari, that the records of the inferior courts in the case may be examined. To do this costs money, and Collins maintains that his client has none of it. He says that he cannot pay his attorney's fees. In the light of these representations, the Court of Appeals ordered that the expense of the appeal be borne by the Government.

United States Attorney Woodworth opposed the motion because he maintained that Dimmick was not a pauper. He reasons that a man convicted of stealing $20,000 was not without means.

Club Women Would Have the Town Board of Trustees Frame An Ordinance.

BERKELEY, November 7.—The civic section of the Town and Gown Club has adopted a new plan with regard to its scheme for beautifying the city through the systematic planting of trees and instead of having a personal canvass made among the property owners will probably ask the Town Board of Trustees at their next meeting to pass an ordinance making it compulsory to set out trees on some avenue which will be designated and to be planted within a certain time.

Several months ago W. L. Jepson, assistant professor of botany at the University of California made a list of the principal streets of the city and selected various shade trees with particular reference to their adaptability to the thoroughfare.

John A. Patton has already agreed to defray the expense of setting out maples along Grove street and it is now probable that the next thoroughfare selected for improvement will be Telegraph avenue. Linden trees have been suggested for this avenue, and if the Town Trustees agree to the scheme adopted by the clubwomen it is probable that a resolution will be passed ordering the work of beautification.

Sometime ago the Trustees agreed to order the work of tree planting but at that time no one could be found who would bid on the contract. Now two firms, one in Oakland and one in Berkeley, have been found who will do the work and it is now expected that definite action will be taken preparatory to the holding of the proposed joint Arbor Day of Berkeley and Oakland on or about December 1.

FRUITVALE RESIDENTS COMPLAIN THAT SANITATION IS INSUFFICIENT.

FRUITVALE, November 7.—The regular November meeting of the Fruitvale sanitary board was held Thursday evening in the Masonic hall. Sanitary Officer William Thornally presented his monthly report, which was received.

There was considerable discussion in regard to the request of a number of property owners of District No. 1, for more sewers. The matter was pretty thoroughly threshed out by the members of the board and it was decided not to grant the request at present. The commissioners are of the opinion that the present system is entirely adequate for the rather sparsely settled neighborhood. The expense of digging more sewers is thought will be out of proportion to the advantages accruing from increased service. When the section is built up more closely they will then be ready to extend the sewer system.

REPAIRING STREETS.

Fruitvale avenue, between East Fourteenth street and the Southern Pacific tracks, is being graded, curbed with wood and a new sidewalk laid. East Fourteenth street, from Fruitvale avenue westward to Oakland, has been resurfaced. ROOSEVELT BOYS' ENTERTAINMENT.

The entertainment and drill given last evening by the members of the Roosevelt boys' brigade was very successful. The little men received many congratulations upon their energy in arranging such an enjoyable program. The way the lads went through their drill was most soldier-like. Light refreshments were served.

MANY GAMES ARE SCHEDULED FOR TOMORROW—DIAMOND GOSSIP.

The Joaquins play the Old Legits tomorrow at Freeman's Park at 2:30 o'clock. The Old Legits have been practicing at the grounds for the last three days and they feel confident that they will play a good game against the Joaquins. McMahon will do the slab duty and Peralta will catch him. The Joaquins will line up as follows: Pitcher, Perine; catcher, Berovich; first base, Wyma; second base, Ireland; third base, Lutgen; shortstop, Deane; left field, Platt; center field, Deane; right field, Goslin; extras, Klein and Schmidt.

The Heesemans go to Hayward's and will have a tussle with the J. H. Woode. The Woods team will have the services of the Presidio battery, and Manager Jack Terry expects to defeat the leggers. The Heesemans will have a very strong team to represent them. Flynn and Hammond will be in the points, and Manager Agnew will have Radford, Spencer, Baxter, Mauser, Bottger, Denovon, and Lefevre. This team looks strong on paper, and if they work together at all, they should be victorious.

The Brooklyn play the Gantner-Mattens at 12:30 at Freeman's tomorrow, and they are still full of the confidence for which they are famous. "Lefty" O'Banion will shine in the box for the Brooklyn, and opposed to him will be either Rollender or "Lefty" Smith. The teams have met once before and the knitters were victorious.

Last Sunday at the Joaquins-Brooklyn game, a lady in the grandstand exclaimed: "The Joaquins have Pabst of the San Francisco to play first base for them, and the balance of their players are nearly all men." She had mistaken Frank Wyma for Pabst, but Wyma is a much neater ball player than Pabst, and the manager of the Joaquins would prefer to have Wyma any day of the week.

A Brooklyn fan noticed the comparative size of the Joaquins and the Brooklyn, and he joshed the manager of the Joaquins by shouting at the top of his voice, "They are only boys, Bill."

Jack Lynch of the Baggotts was stakeholder last Sunday.

The Quiksteps are trying to get Jim Shoa to play second for them. Jim covers a lot of ground and if he plays his usual game, he will be the whole show.

The Old Legits are praying for rain, as they can run well in the mud.

"Bull" Perine twirled a fine game last Sunday, allowing but eight hits.

Beach Deane got a beautiful two-bagger last Sunday.

Frank Wyma plays first base with a finger mitt, and he receives the hardest throws with the greatest ease.

Jack Lutgen fell down to 520 in his batting.

"Demon" Klein says that he will not play any more this season. Good.

Charlie Pingree plays a great third base and he can certainly hit some.

Perine is going to work the spit ball next Sunday. He worked this ball with great effect at Honolulu.

Terry Dennohy can play any position with great credit. He has an offer to play short in a Western League team for next season.

Lou Kennedy has a nice government job in Honolulu. The big chief is as hale and hearty as ever.

"Bill" Fey made a great catch last Sunday. He misjudged the ball and made a kangaroo leap to one side and caught the sphere.

Alec Forbes is thinking of taking the management of Fibush's team for next season.

Beach Deane's sore finger is healed, and he will play at his favorite position tomorrow.

There is talk of another game between the Brooklyn and the Joaquins.

Jack Donovan has got his batting eye with him. He batted at a 419 gait, while he played with the Heesemans.

The Young Abrahamsons defeated the Young Oulands by a score of 9 to 5. The Abrahamsons lined-up as follows: Tom Kieran, pitcher; Clarence Faulkner, catcher; Louis Wise, first base; I. Peelin, second base; Eddie Thiele, third base; Izzy, shortstop; Charlie, left field; left field; Bernie Davis, center field; Blackie, right field. Address all challenges to Clarence Faulkner, manager, care Abrahamson's store.

The stories of the middle ages and of the era of the Roman empire and thenceforward Germany and Scandinavia were built of brick, tile or similar material and were so large as to be stationary, sometimes taking up the whole side of a room, and in the latter country in winter the couches and blankets were spread thereon and the guests used them in lieu of the beds of subsequent years. The fire was built at the bottom and the heat and smoke passed through various flues, distributing warmth before they made their exit to the chimney. Some of them were faced with porcelain and were highly ornamental.

Gentlemen:—
I was afflicted with severe pains of a Rheumatic nature in my right leg in and about the region of the knee for eight years, and could not bend it in the least. I suffered intensely for that long period, and used all sorts of liniments, but was not cured. At last I used the Oil of Eden and was entirely cured with three applications, and have never had any symptom of it since.

Yours truly, M. BERLINGEN.

BUD WADE, AN OAKLAND BOY WHO EQUALS JOE GANS IN THE RING.

There is a new star in the pugilistic arena in Oakland and his friends say he is a wonder. He can hit with both hands and they say that his blow is worse than the kick of a mule. His name is Bud Wade and he is to be found at Baker's City Hall Stables. Those who have seen him work say he can give Joe Gans a run for his money. The Reliance Athletic Club makes a great mistake not signing him for a preliminary for the next fight night.

WHEELER WINS A CORBETT HAS A GAME. PUNCH.

ANGELS PLAY ALL AROUND RECRUITS—SEATTLE MOVES UP.

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Los Angeles	11	2	.846
Seattle	9	2	.818
Sacramento	7	3	.700
San Francisco	5	3	.625
Portland	3	3	.500
Oakland	1	3	.250

George Wheeler forsook second base yesterday at Los Angeles to pitch against the Oakland team, and during his absence Corbett covered the bag. Wheeler impressed everyone present with the fact that he has lost none of his cunning as a pitcher. If it had not been for an unfortunate error by Eager at a critical period the Recruits would have been shut out. Wheeler pitched splendidly and kept the hits so well scattered that it was almost an impossibility for the Recruits to score.

Whenever hits were needed the Angels fell on Graham unmercifully, and the result was that the leaders piled up ten runs against one for Oakland. Both teams played well in the field and the game was interesting in spite of the one-sided score.

SEATTLE MOVES UP.
Mike Fisher brought Willie Thomas from the sick bed to pitch against Seattle yesterday afternoon in the hopes of preventing a Slawish victory, but the crack little pitcher was not equal to the task. Thomas had better control than St. Vrain, but he could not hold the hits down, and Seattle won the game by a score of 10 to 1.

Seattle displaces Sacramento in second place in the league race. The game was played with good plays and was interesting to the spectators.

ONE LONE TALLY.
Only one run was made in the game at San Francisco yesterday and the Stars were lucky enough to get the one. It was a case of win the game or drop into fifth place and San Francisco managed to keep the lead over Portland by the narrowest of margins. The Browns outbatted Har- rick's men, but could not hit often enough to score and the run made by San Francisco was only secured on a foolish throw by Cutchler Shea of the Portland team.

MANY BIG STABLES ARRIVING AT OAKLAND TRACK DAILY.

The horses that are to race at the winter meet of the California Jockey Club are not all here by any means, although the Oakland track is now filled and Tanforan and Ingleside are nearly so. There are many carloads of horses on the way to the coast from Eastern tracks and many more that will leave within the next two weeks. Many horses and their owners, who have heretofore been strangers to the coast, will be here. P. Lunne has a stake entry in the winter meet for the first time. He will start O-sina in the Burns handicap.

The different owners and the number of horses that they will race in California this winter are: Barney Schreiber, 38; M. D. Miller, 18; C. A. Johnson, 10; Boots & Hollenbach, 10; W. McLemore, 4; Chinn & Forsythe, 7; E. Herz, 6; P. E. Van Meter, 1; F. Schorr, 4; D. S. Fountain, 5; U. Z. de Arman, 10; S. S. Bender, 6; S. C. Morton, 6; J. P. Newman, 4; C. C. McCafferty, 8; E. J. Smith, 6; F. C. Mosher & Co., 4; T. H. Ryan, 6; Frank Phillips, 4; D. Kripp, 4; James McAlister, 4; William Cahill, 3; H. A. Cotton, 3; J. Ownbey, 3; J. Eandy, 2; C. F. Saunders, 4; Frank Dora, 5; W. W. Baldwin, 2; G. Wentworth, 5; P. J. Miles, 3; J. Coffey, 1; H. E. Rowell, 10; J. M. Johnson, 6; A. Robinson, 6; G. Lanka, 3; J. McDowell, 5; M. J. Daly, 10; R. A. Smith, 14; F. Regan, 12.

Besides these there are many smaller stables and individuals enter. Many of the above-mentioned stables are already at the track and others are on the way.

Jerry Rensch, the clever little California jockey, who was the premier rider of the winter meet last year, has been riding in France all summer with great success. He has a hievel of the distinction of leading all the jockeys in winning in that country. It is quite possible that he will return to California this winter and take an occasional mount at Emeryville.

Evelyn Bird, Albemarle, Kleinwood and Maple are in a string which arrived from the East yesterday and they will race under L. Mosler's colors.

Two carloads of racers arrived from Los Angeles yesterday afternoon and took up quarters at the track, which had been engaged for them.

George Cochran has arrived at the Oakland track with his speedy performers, Indian II and Terr Incognito.

Among the jockeys that will be seen in the saddle on the opening day are J. Daly, W. Daly, Lee Jackson, Ivy Powell, Waterbury, Chandler, W. See, Hildebrand, W. Knapp, Farrell, Hall Connell, Erskewie, Tullett, Birkenruth and Coleman.

BIG LEAGUES ARE WORRIED.

THEY ARE ALARMED OVER THE RAID MADE FOR PLAYERS.

Eastern baseball magnates are very much perturbed over the reports that a number of their stars in the two major leagues are coming to California next season. While they will not openly admit it, the "Outlaw League," as the Pacific Coast League is called in the East, has put nearly all of the magnates of the National and American Leagues, the two powerful major organizations, on the anxious state and would not be surprising to see the big leagues making overtures to the so-called "outlaws" before the beginning of next season.

The magnates in the east league have almost limitless backing and are prepared to fight it out to the end. Good talent draws large crowds to the ball games in California and each of the magnates has determined to have at least one star player for the next year. In order to get them they will have to draw on the big leagues and as they have the money, they can pay the salaries to get them away from the East.

Comiskey, manager of the White Sox of Chicago is greatly worried over the report that his crack fielders, Jones and White, will leave for pastures new, which are to be found in the Pacific Coast League. Comiskey is not alone in his troubles, for they are shared by McGraw of the New York Nationals, who is liable to lose "Iron Man" McGinnity and Catcher Jack Warner to the same "outlaw" league.

After having been at war with each other for a number of years, past during which time the players have won fabulous salaries from the managers of the American and National Leagues, they have patched up a truce at the beginning of this season and they thought that their troubles were at an end. Now the Coast League bobs up into a well planned raid on the big leagues and sufficient backing with which to do it. This means that they will have to fight again and that the players will once more have the upper hand of the managers.

The Eastern magnates are endeavoring to get the Coast League into the combination but as yet they have been unsuccessful. They have sent invitations after invitations for a conference, falling in this they have sent emissaries to the coast, but all have availed nothing. The Coast League magnates have stated the conditions under which they will join the National League organization, and they are an unreasonable, but the combination will not take them at their proper rating and the local managers are of the opinion that there is a nigger in the fence and hold out firmly for their demands.

FRITZ STENZEL OF SAN LORENZO.

Fritz Stenzel and his brother, Henry, own the largest farm in the San Lorenzo district. They are farmers first and sportsmen afterward. Fritz has just established a record as the champion wind shot of Eden township. He can shoot high or low or out of line or in line. The fact is, he is a crackjack with the shotgun.

RELiance TO GO FOOTBALL GAMES NORTH. TOMORROW.

WILL PLAY MULTNOMAH ON NEW YEAR'S DAY AT PORTLAND.

The Reliance football team has completed arrangements for a northern trip this winter and will play the Multnomah eleven at Portland on New Year's Day. From Portland they will go to Salem, where they will play the Chemawa Indians on January 4. As yet they have not concluded the negotiations with the Portland Indians at Riverside for a game on Thanksgiving Day or Christmas.

Reliance proposes to take the strongest team possible north and the game with Multnomah should be a good one. The team line will remain the same as it is at present, but they will have Beknap at quarter, Geisler, the former Stanford varsity man, to do the kicking, Atkinson for linebacking and Magee and McGilvray as backs. This will give the team the strongest possible line-up.

With this line-up, the game at Portland should be an even struggle with the shade in favor of Reliance, and the Chemawa game should be a walkover for the Californians.

adventuring to plant an orchard. He tried faithfully for a year or two but with poor success. He found the soil in that locality was worthless for fruit trees and the few that did grow were a sickly lot.

He then decided to him that he could not raise anything he could grow so he went into the business. Now he has a cacti nursery and is making money out of it. He supplies local people when they want cacti and also to the big mail order houses. The large Eastern cities are in Europe. He has been sending plants to Germany for the last four years, a last spring he made a shipment of about 5000 pounds.

He has been as much about cacti as he does about bugs, and when he meets a new variety he prizes it as a prospector does a promising gold vein. He now has plants from all over South America and the West Indies. He goes clear to the Mexican line for and can find it nowhere else.

courtesies due each other."

Another speaker who dispensed domestic advice was Dr. Yamei Kin, the Chinese woman lecturer, who told the Chicago Chinese that her countrymen could teach Americans how to solve the divorce problem.

She said, "We have few divorces and no suits for breach of promise. But there, you know, the engagement is as binding as the marriage, although the bridegroom rarely sees the bride before the wedding day. America might not be so troubled with the divorce problem if parents, as in China, had the supervision of the marriage arrangement."

Dr. Kin's answer to his bargain is a characteristic of the Chinese. Even when the parents palm off a less favored sister upon the unsuspecting groom he rarely lives other than happily.

"Of course, we have elopements in China, but they are not elopements in your sense of the term. They are merely the young man and his family tell the couple to avoid the expense in a formal wedding."

Orange blossoms crown the head of the autumn bride, the mists of dotted duchesse meet, with wide borders of fluted duchesse lace, fall in filmy folds from the white blossoms in her hair.

The table for a bride's luncheon dinner is spread with a cloth of faded double linen or lace or both, and lighted by electroliters in graceful candelabra, a five-branched silver candelabrum, in Empire style, standing in the center of the table, with dainty white silk floral shades, fringed with delicate beads above the shades, white wax candles. Pale green—or the very palest of pink shades—may be used with a sprig of orange blossoms. At each corner of the table a single candelitic electroliter, similarly shaded, stands arm and matches the center one in design and color, although the world be much better to have corner candelabras smaller, as to height, and a few people have them so.

The flowers are arranged in flat effects, with loose blossoms strewn over the table, and sometimes the corsage bouquets of the women are bunched against a low platter as a table decoration, and distributed after the meal. Fashionable table adornments that a dream of floral beauty consist of white jacinthes, gardenias, carnations, and trifoliate ferns by way of foliage, or cuttellea, orchid, a quotes a quaint letter written by the premier to Lord Granville in 1836, after the former's Irish home rule policy had alienated most of the peers of England. There was to be a dinner in honor of the queen's birthday, and the Prince of Wales was to come and to bring Prince Albert Victor with him. "But," wrote Mr. Gladstone, "his position would be very awkward if he comes and witnesses a great nakedness of the land." Could Lord Granville help by persuading dissident peers to put in an appearance on this occasion only? Mr. Morley, perhaps the suspicion of a smile between the lines, records that "the prince was unable to be present, although the great nakedness was by him denounced."

Lord Curzon, viceroy of India, visited the Sikh states of the Punjab next month and install the young nabab of Bahawalpur on the throne. Bahawalpur is the only princely state in the Punjab and the second largest one, at Patiala. It has a revenue of $750,000 a year. The nabab is 70 years of age, having succeeded his father in 1894. With the early maturity of the east a lad of 16 was grown up. At that time he was a British commissionaire, and when the state, it was found, the palace contained one article of gold of each variety of utensil, as gold rifle studded with jewels, one sword, one gold saucer, and so on. It is related that after a revolution the writer on seafarers, smugglers and poachers, had bitterly fought with the late W. E. Henley, lay dying in London. To Henley, Edinburgh, lame and ill, came a direct message from the Runciman, "I liked the Henley could come and look on him he would get well. He was a dying man's whim, but Heriot took the train from Edinburgh and arrived in London to find his friend

For the bride who belongs to sewing society of her church a present that is certain to insure her continued attendance at each Dorcas meeting is a set of sewing articles for a challenge. A pretty challenge basket holds a variety of small articles, such as a box, holding a thimble with the bride monogram upon it, a case containing needles and hole holding pins, a silver emery, a small ivory weight, a pair of small scissors for snipping threads, and a case big enough to hold a spool of thread. When these objects are intended for a work basket as a silver measuring rule should be a part of the outfit. The side of the basket is marked with the rule. The pretty wrought flower forms a handle. Then there is a glove darning, with two small silver knobs at the ends of a slender oval stem, and a silver ring on a handle, designed to hold a variety of things in the way of needles, buttons and cushions and button thread bags and holders as might be useful in a work basket.

slacks and bodice proper cut in one piece. This is the latest development of Franco-British dress making. The most "swagger" tailor in London has produced even in the last week a manly vigorous gown for the use of a young man. It is absolutely no chance for being thin any longer. There is no telling where her arms begin; where her body stops. And yet it is the most fascinating of moves, even on a man. In this unique style is made in broad cloth, one of those new terra cotta reds which are to be so fashionable. Heavy plaits hang from the shoulders, and the same broad material forms the skirt. The sleeves enter the garment in the side plaits, about three inches above the waist line. The effect is much more interesting than it sounds. The color, too, was picked out as a fine specimen, was purchased in England on account of their style of figure. It is admirable adopted to long, angular women and to small ones with flat chests.

THEATERS OFFER NEW BILLS ON BOTH SIDES OF BAY.

Band Will Play at Macdonough—Dewey's New Play—Idora Park Has New Plans for Coming Week.

"In Old Kentucky," which opened at the Macdonough Theater Thursday night, will be played there tonight and tomorrow night. No American play has met with greater favor from the theater-going public than has "In Old Kentucky." The play has an entirely new and gorgeous scenic production which has just been completed in New York, and is now being used by the company for the first time, and which is by far the most expensive and elaborate scenic outfit which has ever been identified with the play. The company will be on the same high scale of excellence that has always been maintained, and the role of the mountain heroine, Madge, will be played by Miss Beale. The story of "In Old Kentucky" is generally known to theater patrons. It tells of a feud between the Dierlys and Lindseys, two families in the mountains of Kentucky, which resulted some years before the opening of the play in the treacherous killing of the father of Madge Dierly and one Ben Lorey by Lee Lindsey. The plot is extremely cool throughout, dealing with romance, vitality, adventure and a girl's passion of mind and daring. The last act is one of magnificent self-sacrifice, and, with this exception, ends happily for all parties concerned.

ROYAL ITALIAN BAND COMING HERE SOON.

The Royal Italian Band, led by M. Chiffarelli, otherwise known as "Chiffarelli the Great," will be at the Macdonough Theater Monday evening, November 9. It did not take me fifteen minutes," said Chiffarelli recently, when speaking of his band.

gauge the musical ability of our new director. "I awaited in considerable anxiety the first rehearsal he should conduct, knowing that such would demonstrate immediately of what sort of stuff Chiffarelli was made. The first selection chosen for rehearsal was Gounod's 'Serenade.' 'Song Smilo Slumber,' familiar to us all, but which is so delicate in its sentiment that it can be made or murdered by the interpretation it receives. I had gotten into the habit during the reign of our late director of leaving the theater whenever the 'Serenade' was played, as it had become under his baton a sort of pianola performance from which every particle of shading and expression had been totally eliminated. What was my delight then to see that Chiffarelli made the 'Serenade' live once more, to hear him give it every little shade of delicate sentiment that it calls for. It was to me like the raising from the dead of a dear friend, the restoring of a soul to an inanimate body. So I knew that Chiffarelli was pure gold. Proofs of this fact accumulated quickly as the days went by and I saw my hand rise gradually from the realm of the meretricious mechanical to that of the human and spiritual."

THE GREAT RIVELA COMING TO IDORA.

Regardless of expense Manager George O. MacKinnon has secured Rivela and his great musical organization for a concert to be given tomorrow afternoon at Idora Park. On this occasion Chiffarelli, Rivela, "Italy's Greatest Band Master," and his magnificent aggregation of artists, will give to the visitors at Idora Park the greatest of musical treats.

Everyone will pleasantly remember the splendid leadership of Chevalier Emilio Rivela in connection with the Royal Italian Band, which played a long engagement in San Francisco and on the coast. Since that well remembered season Rivela has become identified with the West, having established his home in California. During his residence here he has been active in forming a band of talented musicians, with several of his former associates of the old Royal Italian Band. The ability of Rivela to extract the most pleasing of music from his musicians is conceded by all, and Rivela is enthusiastically proud of his present band. He declares that he will show the finest musicians ever banded together. The music to be played will include both that of the greatest artistic merit and that sufficiently melodious to appeal to the masses.

After Sunday evening there will be performances at Idora Park only on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays and Sunday matinees. The bills will be of the same order as in the past. This will continue until March 1, when the management intends to open again as usual. The change is made on account of the winter. The park will be open to the public every day in the year.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN BRINGS BIG CROWDS.

The Central Theater turned thousands away, unable to provide them with seats, during its mammoth production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and in response to the universal demand, it will repeat the tremendous success next Monday night and all next week. The great play was put on at enormous expense with new and magnificent scenery and grand spectacular effects, and with a cast of one hundred people, and an immense chorus of colored folk. It was the general verdict that the Central Theater's performance of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," under the special direction of L. B. Stockwell was beyond all question, the greatest ever seen in the city of San Francisco. This version of the play used was that in which William A. Brady scored his unprecedented success in New York City, and in the climatic scenes of the Central production the applause was wildly enthusiastic. The program next week will contain not only all the features of the former week's show, but in addition will introduce new specialties, new dances and new tableaux.

GOOD FARCE COMEDY COMING TO ALCAZAR.

The comedy season so happily inaugurated at the Alcazar is much to the public's liking. There is sorrow enough in the ordinary affairs of life. A vast majority of people would rather visit the theater to laugh than to cry. No farcical comedy has been written in the past half-century that is more laugh-provoking than "The Private Secretary," which is to be played next week. It has moved hundreds of thousands to merriment since its first production in London with the now representative tragic actor Beerbohn Tree as the pathetically glib and plaintively humorous Rev. Mr. Spalding. This role, in the Alcazar production, will fall to a very artistic little comedian, John B. Maler, whose personality and method has made him, within a month, one of the most liked comic players that the town has ever known. "The Private Secretary" has been aptly characterized as "the force that won't wear out."

"RUBES AND ROSES" MAKES A HIT.

The patrons of Fischer's Theater will not have to wait long to learn the secret of "Rubes and Roses." The play, founded into popularity in one night, has been much to commend. The plot (and it is a good one) is new and original, and funny to the last. It is clean, with genuine mirth from the rise to the fall of the curtain, and it is full of life and sparkle. Above all, it has that "go" essential to a perfect performance. It's kind, and it is as finely staged as it is acted. Indeed, the staging has been a matter of special care on the part of the management, and the costumes excel those of any previous production. State Manager Jones has evolved some novel effects and several surprises in the way of specialties. As has been the rule with the plays at Fischer's, countless stars are afforded for the display of beautiful gowns and costumes, characteristic of the scenes. Of the cast, it is only necessary to state that all the original principals assumed the leading roles, with the addition of a charming and very clever soubrette, Miss Georgia O'Rourke, who "brought down" the audience from the moment she stepped on the stage.

JAMES KEANE AND COMPANY AT THE DEWEY NEXT WEEK.

Beginning with tomorrow's matinee James Keane and company will commence a four weeks' engagement at the New Dewey Theater, and for the first week the attraction will be the comedy-drama, "Heart and Sword," which has had such a phenomenal run in all of the Eastern cities. It will be the first presentation of this romantic drama on the coast, and it is sure to draw crowded houses as it is somewhat similar to "The Royal Family" and "The Prisoner of Zenda," both of which were extremely popular when presented at the Alcazar. Mr. Keane is considered to be one of the best romantic actors in the business, and in the Eastern cities he enjoys the same prestige and popularity that T. Daniel Fawcett and James Neill enjoy on this coast. Mr. Keane is an expert swordsman, and in the third act of "Heart and Sword" he is called upon to show his skill with the foil. It is so seldom that an actor is familiar with the use of the sword, that it is refreshing to watch one that is. Mr. Keane's work with the blade will certainly be one of the features of the production. Eastern company to the coast with him, and it is an exceptionally strong one. His leading lady, Miss Helietta Brown, is considered to be one of the loveliest actresses on the American stage today. Besides this, she is a finished actress, and it is a treat to watch her act. The balance of the company was selected with the greatest care, the object being to select actors and actresses who were adapted to the parts assigned to them.

and the result is a well-balanced company that has been spoken of in the highest terms by the press in all parts of the country.

"Heart and Sword" is a love story in which political intrigue plays a prominent part. The scene is laid in three small principalities which are continually at war, and a contract is made whereby the ruler of one, a prince, is to marry the ruler of another, a princess, although they have never met and their signatures are fraudulently obtained. They meet in disguise at an inn while traveling and fall in love with each other. There is a happy culmination and everything ends as it should. The plot of "Heart and Sword" is cleverly woven and there is an undercurrent of delightful comedy and humor throughout.

THE NOVELTY THEATRE TEMPORARILY CLOSED.

Col. Lubelski closes his popular Novelty Theatre after tomorrow night's performance for a period of about three weeks, in order to make necessary improvements to make more room for his fast increasing business. The upper floor over the main theatre has been secured and two galleries will be put on either side, and the favorite play-house will be improved in many ways, so as to make it one of the prettiest and best arranged vaudeville houses west of Chicago. Col. Lubelski is sparing no expense in this direction, and when the Novelty re-opens there will be a transformation that will please the patrons of this theatre. The Novelty, under Mr. Lubelski's able management, has been a signal success ever since its inception in September, 1902, and the future prospects are even brighter, as the seating capacity will almost be doubled when the alterations are completed. Already some of the best vaudeville people in the business have been secured for the grand re-opening, and at all times only the cream of the profession will be seen at this play-house.

The Moon-Faced Bear.

Supply the missing words by objects illustrating them in the picture. Can you see the five other creatures who are looking at the moon-faced bear?

Once upon a time there was a bear with a very large ----- He was so odd-looking that folks constantly made remarks about his appearance, and to avoid these unpleasant comments on his looks he decided to look up a companion who was deaf and dumb. While sitting beside a ----- one day brooding over his hard luck he noticed a ----- eyeing him from the water. This annoyed the bear, and seizing the ----- he was about to devour him when it occurred to him that the ----- was voiceless, so would be a companion who was not likely to make comments on his odd appearance; and from that time they became chums. In a little while the ----- had taught the bear to travel in the water as he did. While traveling along far beneath the surface one day they came to a subterranean cavern. On entering they found it a veritable fairyland. The crystal walls sparkled like diamonds, and sapphires and long ruby-colored stalactites hung from the dome overhead, while through an opening in the top streamed brilliant sunlight. The effect of this light on the wonderful furnishings of the cave was marvelous to behold—it seemed as if a million diamonds and rainbows were sifting their colored rays upon the bear and his companion. They soon became luminous and brilliant themselves, and when they reached the outside of the cavern the funny round face of the bear looked like a full moon. Then the bear, perceiving that he had become a brilliant-looking creature and could make a presentable appearance, took the ----- under his arm and journeyed towards his old haunts. Every creature they met on the way fled before them in terror and in a little while the forest was deserted. The bear enjoyed the consternation of his former tormentors, and decided to have some more fun with them, so he and the ----- returned to the stream to await the return of the frightened folks. There the bear sat with his head just above water.

In a little while the ----- returned, and lined the banks of the stream, staring in wonder till night came on. As the darkness increased the bear's face became brighter and brighter, and the ----- all concluded that the man in the moon had brought the moon down from the sky. Among those on shore was a long-legged ----- who, thinking that these guesses were all wrong, decided to solve the problem himself. So he made a sudden spring and drove his ----- into the object, whereupon blood gushed out and the bear sank unconscious beneath the surface of the water. When the ----- returned to shore the -----, smelling the blood on his -----, gave chase to devour him, so that when the moon-faced bear regained consciousness and rose to the surface he found the banks deserted. Then he discovered that he was no longer odd-looking, for when the ----- ran his ----- into his face and the blood ran out it reduced the size of his face so much that you couldn't tell him from other bears. So he returned to his home and lived unmolested, and none ever knew that he was not only the odd-looking creature whom they used to ridicule, but also the moon-faced bear who gave them such a shock.

THE ALMOND TREE.

A wicked housewife killed a rich man's son. His sister Marjory gathered up his bones and placed them under an almond tree. A beautiful bird appeared, then flew away. The bird sang for the goldsmith, who gave him a chain; the shoemaker gave a pair of red shoes, and the miller gave a millstone. He returned to the almond tree and sang! The rich man came out and the bird gave him the chain; to Marjory he gave the red shoes, and dropped the millstone on the wicked housewife. Smoke rose up and found him.
